Sheriff Hunting Driver Of Car in Tuesday Crash On Road Near Woodstock

Deputies Go on Meagre Clues in Search for Operator Who Left Scene of Accident

Truck, Bus in Jam

Students Escape Injury; Truck Driver, Woman Are Hurt

A partial license plate number, a broken hub cap and splinters of glass of a two-door Chrysler sedan are the only clues available in the sheriff's office intensive investigation to apprehend the driver of a car that left the scene of a bizarre accident Tuesday afternoon on the Bearsville-Woodstock road, near the Apple Monument.

The driver is being sought as the key witness in an accident that occurred about 4:10 Tuesday touching off a series of incidents that involved:

A narrow escape from serious injury for seven Kingston High School students riding in a school bus.

The overturning of a large produce truck laden with cauliflower. The truck caught fire but was saved by alert work of the Woodstock Fire Department.

Injury to a pedestrian walking along the highway at the scene of the accident.

Injury to the driver of the school bus.

The disappearance of the driver of a passenger car claimed to have been the contributing cause of the accident.

The injured were:

Mrs. Therese Wooleas Kessell of Bearsville, who was buried under the shower of cauliflower when the truck overturned. She was treated by Dr. Cohn of Woodstock, who took three stitches in closing a deep laceration on her scalp. She was later taken home.

Earl E. Ruso, 42, of Rensselaer, N. Y., driver of the produce truck, is at the Kingston Hospital where his condition this morning was reported good. He was taken to the hospital by Sheriff C. Smith.

Blames Missing Driver

Despite a maze of conflicting testimony, including a difference of opinion as to whether the school bus was stopped or moving when the accident occurred, it was substantially agreed that the accident appeared to have been caused by the unidentified driver pulling out of line to pass the school bus, and meeting the truck coming in the opposite direction.

Sheriff Smith said this morning that Ruso would be questioned at the hospital in an effort to secure a better description of the driver of the car. The sheriff said that the accident occurred so rapidly that his deputies—William Frost and Leonard Ellsworth—had considerable difficulty in establishing the facts.

According to best available information, the school bus, carrying seven students home from Kingston High, was being driven by a veteran driver, James McAuliffe, of West Hurley. As he proceeded toward Bearsville and approached the Apple Monument, he saw Mrs. Kessell of Bearsville standing along side the road signalling him to stop.

The truck loaded with cauliflower was approaching from the other direction, when McAuliffe stopped the bus to take on Mrs. Kessell. At the moment a car turned out from the rear of the bus directly in the path of the truck.

Averts Major Tragedy

Quick reaction by the driver of the truck, Earl Ruso, averted a major tragedy. Faced with the alternatives of either crashing into the bus, running down Mrs. Kessell or going into the ditch, he veered sharply to the right, plunging into the soft earth with the truck halfway off the concrete.

The truck turned over pinning Ruso in the cab and showering crates of cauliflower on Mrs. Kessell, knocking her down and completely covering her. Ruso managed to free himself about the same time the truck caught fire and he dragged Mrs. Kessell from under the pile of cauliflower.

Ruso then made his way to the home of Deputy Sheriff William

Woodstock Voters Reject Proposal For Consolidation

Vote of 438 to 70 Is Interpreted as Evidence Woodstock Wants Own Central School

Voters of the Town of Woodstock by an overwhelming margin of 438 to 70 Tuesday night rejected a proposal to consolidate with the townships of Shandaken and Olive for a new central school.

The vote was interpreted as definite evidence that Woodstock desires its own central school, distinct and separate from the other townships.

The village of Woodstock voted 239 for its own school and only four dissenting ballots were recorded. The Bearsville district cast 664 for the centralized Woodstock school and only seven against.

The proposal was defeated only in the Wittenberg district where two persons voted for the Woodstock school and 24 registered op-

State Teachers College Is Praised in Article Appearing in the Arbitration Journal

Writing under the title "New Paltz-An Experiment In Community Self-Education" in the Arbitration Journal, Paul Fitzpatrick, administrative vice president, American Arbitration Association, is the author of the following interesting article:

New Paltz is a town of 1492 population, in Ulster county, New York, about 15 miles west of Poughkeepsie. It is distinguished on several counts. Founded in the 17 century by a group of hardy Huguenots refugees from European religious oppression, it has gone its steady ways for three hundred years, self-contained, practically immune from boom and depression cycles, American to the core. It is in the heart of the greatest apple-growing county in the United States, but has kept free of sole dependence on a one-crop agricultural economy by developing well-diversified farming.

Secondly, it is the seat of one of the livest educational institutions in New York, the State

Atom Bomb Production in Balkans Heads for Vote

By MEL MOST

Paris, Sept. 18 (AP)—The Paris Peace Conference, stirred by news of Secretary of Commerce Henry A. Wallace's demand for an American-Russian atomic treaty, headed today for a showdown on a bitterly contested British effort to prohibit atom bomb production in the beaten Balkan nations.

The British amendment—seeking to add atomic fission weapons and controlled torpedoes to the list of arms prohibited in Bulgaria—already has met with violent Slav opposition in the military commission, which had the matter on Monday's agenda but put it off with a decision to complete work on the Italian Treaty first. Consideration of the weapons clause of the Hungarian Treaty also was delayed.

Now the commission has passed provisionally on all of its Italian Treaty clauses and has only to consider Italian appeals before reaching the test fight on prohibited weapons for Soviet-backed Bulgaria. And the explosive issue it had sought to cool off by delay had become hotter than ever as a result of the release yesterday by Wallace of his letter on atomic energy to President Truman.

The British undoubtedly slipped the words "atomic bombs" into an amendment last week which added controlled torpedoes to the list of possible modern weapons—including guided missiles—which Bulgaria "shall not possess, construct or experiment with."

The Slav delegations spotted the words at once, objected and blocked all immediate consideration of the proposal, putting it on the military commission's schedule for later discussion.

Britain protested that the Slavs had supported a similar proposal for the Italian Treaty, but the Slavs replied, in effect: "Demo-

Decontrol Board Considering Lids On Dairy Products

Might Delay Decision Until Friday to Permit an Examination of Data Received

By EDWIN B. HAAKINSON

Washington, Sept. 18 (AP)—Facing a thick stack of conflicting arguments, the Price Decontrol Board met today to decide whether to order price lids returned to cheese, butter and possibly all other dairy products.

A staff member for the independent panel said the three members might delay a decision until Friday to permit thorough examination of letters, telegrams and other data submitted in response to the Board's invitation. The sessions will be closed to the public.

It was the second time in a month that the question of dairy product prices came before the group granted final authority by Congress to impose or remove price ceilings.

At the time of its meat decontrol decision last August 20, the Board allowed dairy products to remain free of the price curbs that had expired June 30 along with O.P.A. The panel ruled that (1) while milk and other dairy products were in short supply and (2) while price controls could be enforced, (3) dairy prices had not climbed unreasonably, hence the industry should be given an additional trial free from ceilings.

The Agriculture Department's milk section announced last night that a study of retail milk prices in 25 representative cities showed an average increase of about 3.4 cents a quart since May, or a gain of only four tenths of a cent since the Decontrol Board's decision last month.

In issuing its call for data to be studied at its session today, the Board expressed primary "concern" over price boosts in wholesale cheese and butter products but noted that these were related to prices for all other products, including milk.

The dairy industry generally opposed return of price ceilings. Spokesmen for consumer groups, most housewives, and labor union leaders urged return of all controls, including subsidies and a price roll-back to June 30 levels.

Forrestal Gives Praise To Byrnes in Speech

New York, Sept. 18—Secretary of the Navy James Forrestal told the Navy Industrial Association last night that he had torn up the speech he had prepared for its annual dinner after reflecting "in certain atomic disturbances which took place in this town within the past few days."

In an extemporaneous address, Forrestal praised Secretary of State James Byrnes, describing him as a "great American, who has served this country well," and adding that "if the world will permit it, he will serve it equally well."

Forrestal made no mention to Secretary of Commerce Wallace's foreign policy talk in Madison Square Garden last Thursday night.

Kingston Hospital Gives Diplomas to 17 Student Nurses

Rev. Dr. Lindquist Gives Commencement Address; Dr. Holcomb Awards Class Diplomas

"The circumstances which attend heroism are as significant as the deed itself," the Rev. Raymond Lindquist, D. D., pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Orange, N. J., said last night as he spoke of the adverse conditions in which doctors and nurses must fight disease and illness. Dr. Lindquist gave the commencement address at the annual graduation exercises of the Kingston Hospital School of Nursing in Kingston High School Auditorium. Seventeen student nurses received their diplomas.

In meeting the many trials in their careers, Dr. Lindquist gave the nurses three suggestions. He urged them to make a thorough analysis of their own traits and personalities as well as the situation and circumstances under which they will work. This he would follow with action to keep abreast of new technics and medicines and develop nursing skills. Finally he advised the members of the class to attach themselves to great ideals, great personalities and the Supreme Personality for courage, strength and confidence to perform their tasks. Dr. Lindquist used for his text in explaining the difficult work of the nurse, a portion of the 20th verse of Second Samuel Chapter 23, "Benaiah . . . went down also and slew a lion in the midst of a pit in time of snow."

17 Graduates

Dr. Frederic Holcomb presided at the exercises last night in the absence of William Van Etten, president of the board of managers of the hospital. He introduced the speaker and with the assistance of Miss Alma Porter superintendent of nurses, presented diplomas to the Misses Edna Margaret Beaver, Port Ewen; Matilda Margaret Bowers, Dorothy Alice Deyo, Audrey Anne Gillen, Helen Marie Leonard, Marie Edith McAndrew, Geraldine Kathryn Peters, Hope Elna Ransom, Eileen Marie Young, Kingston; Barbara Phyllis Delameter, Margaretville; Shirley Elizabeth Dirk, Highland; Freda Minna Jakeway, Catskill; Lorraine Frances Jackson, Saugerties; Blanche Hope Wilcox, Sleightsburg; Shirley Valmeri Wager, Accord; Virginia Mae Schmidt, Malabar, Fla., and Barbara Jean White, Waverly, Pa.

Special Award Winners

Dr. Holcomb also presented the awards with Miss Matilda Bowers, class valedictorian, receiving four totaling $70 and a $25 bond. Miss Virginia Schmidt received three totaling $45.

The awards follow:

To the nurse who has reached the highest degree of efficiency in her work at the time of graduation, the Dr. A. A. Stern prize of $10, Matilda Bowers.

Citation Awarded By Army, Navy To Kingston "Y"

A citation awarded by the Army and Navy to the Kingston Y.M.C.A. for its U.S.O. work carried on during the war years, was presented to President Clarence S. Rowland at the monthly meeting of the board of directors of the "Y" held at the building last evening.

With the presentation of the citation the work of the "Y" as a U.S.O. center for servicemen was brought to a close.

The citation will be framed and hung in the main lobby of the building.

The board decided that it would cooperate with the city and county in the U.S.O. financial drive in October. This drive is being staged for the purpose of raising funds to carry on U.S.O. shows in the army camps and among the sailors and marines.

The local "Y" during the four years of the war was used as a U.S.O. center for servicemen who were granted the privileges of the "Y" and were given free beds and the use of the facilities of the physical and social departments of the "Y" including the showers and swimming pool.

The local "Y" was one of the 500 associations in the country used for U.S.O. Centers during the war, and during the war period it was estimated that a million soldiers and sailors and marines embraced the opportunities offered by these 500 associations each day.

The directors also voted to place L. A. "Doc" Doolan in charge of business men's health department during the fall and winter.

Tientsin, Sept. 18 (AP)—Tientsin newspapers today expressed fear of a Russo-American war as they observed this 15th anniversary of the Mukden incident which perecipitated Japan's conquest of Manchuria. The pro-government Republican Daily News said that "under increasing Russo-American friction, Japan might become powerful again and if war breaks out between the United States and Russia it is possible she once more would turn her evil jaws toward China."

R. E. Craft Buys Deyo Store for Appliance Line

Will Tear Out Apartments and Use Building for Business; Will Open in October

The three story brick building at 666 Broadway which houses the Deyo Brothers Hardware store on the first floors and apartments on the upper floors was sold on Tuesday by Mrs. A. Eloise Myer, owner, to Raymond E. Craft who will move his Westinghouse appliance, radio, paint, hardware and household-furnishing business to the location. Mr. Craft in July sold his building on O'Neil street and retired from the super-market business but continued with the Westinghouse appliance, radio, paint, hardware and household supply business.

Today Mr. Craft, in confirming the purchase of the building, said he expected to be in the Broadway store in October after alterations have been completed.

To Tear Out Apartments

The building is of three story brick construction and at the rear and on Downs street there is a large vacant lot which Mr. Craft intends to use for the erection of an addition to the present building as soon as building material becomes available. He said he intends to use the entire building for his business purposes, altering the apartments on the upper floors for that purpose. When the new addition is completed the entire lot at the corner of Broadway and Downs street will be used for building purposes and the present floor space will be doubled.

Last July when Mr. Craft disposed of his building on O'Neil street he purchased the Steuding building on Hurley avenue with the intention of moving his Westinghouse appliance and other lines to that location but later he sold that building to a printing concern.

Mr. Craft plans as soon as possible to install a new modern front in the present building on

Longshoremen Load Vessels As C.I.O. Cuts Picket Lines

(By The Associated Press)

The stalemate between the C.I.O. National Maritime Union and shipping operators continued today, bottling up many ships in the nation's ports although shortened C.I.O. picket lines permitted access to A.F.L. manned ships and eased a tense situation along the waterfronts.

No successful moves were reported to bring ship operators' negotiating committees and the striking C.I.O. National Maritime Union together in New York.

Talks were broken off Sunday night when the operators demanded that security watches be returned to struck vessels. The N.M.U. had withdrawn the watches earlier in the day.

On the west coast, there also were no signs of conferences between the operators and striking C.I.O. Marine Cooks and Stewards Union, and the Independent Marine Firemen, Oilers, and Watertenders, which struck with the N.M.U. Friday at the end of the A.F.L. stoppage to enforce demands for wage parity with A.F.L. seamen.

The operators have insisted the men return to work before resuming negotiations.

But A.F.L. maritime workers trudged back to work on ships in New York and other Atlantic and Gulf ports yesterday after Joseph Curran, president of the N.M.U., ordered that picketing be restricted to C.I.O.-contracted vessels.

He said in a statement in New York today, however, that the C.I.O. seamen's strike was "100 per cent effective" with "approximately 900 vessels demobilized in various ports throughout the nation."

Withdrawal of picketing from

Wallace Is Due at The Capitol

Official Says He Must Quit Talking on Foreign Policy or Get Out

His Proposals

Makes Public Letter He Wrote to Truman in July

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

Washington, Sept. 18 (AP)—Top administration officials said today President Truman has decided to tell Secretary of Commerce Henry A. Wallace he must quit talking about American foreign policy or get out of the Cabinet.

Wallace was due at the White House at 3:30 p. m. (E.S.T.).

Less than 24 hours earlier he made public—without Mr. Truman's approval—a letter he wrote the Chief Executive last July urging that this country agree to "reasonable Russian guarantees of security" even at the risk of "appeasement" cries.

"We have little time to lose," Wallace said in calling for a "shift in some of our thinking about international matters."

The letter, which Mr. Truman simply acknowledged and passed on to Secretary of State Byrnes, proposed a long list of moves Wallace said should improve American-Russian relations.

Among them was a definite treaty pledge for the eventual destruction of America's store of atomic bombs and a reassessment of this country's military as well as foreign policies to avert what Wallace described as the danger of a third world war.

The President specifically "disapproved" release of the letter for general publication on the grounds that his approval might be misconstrued aboard as applying to its contents as well.

But his decision—reversing an earlier one by White House Press Secretary Charles G. Ross—came too late. Copies had been distributed among reporters at the Commerce Department after it had been learned that a columnist was about to make the document public. It was this fact that had led Ross to give Wallace a tentative go-ahead to release the letter.

Thus it broke into print as the week-old Cabinet drama moved toward this afternoon's climax act in Mr. Truman's office.

Whether Wallace would choose to keep his position in silence or get out and fight for the foreign policy he believes America should have was his own secret for the moment. But at least some of those close to him expressed belief he would elect to get out rather than be gagged.

Other Details

Swiftly, these other details were learned from top administration officials:

1. Wallace, already at work on his scheduled September 24 speech at Providence, R. I., hoped last night to have it ready to take to the conference with the President. His plan to seek presidential approval of this address evidently was made without knowledge of Mr. Truman's decision for a showdown on his cabinet status.

2. The President is deeply concerned about the effect abroad of Wallace's foreign policy declarations, fearful lest other governments might begin to act on the assumption that this government is split over its relations with Russia.

3. Through Undersecretary of State Will Clayton, who conferred with him late yesterday, Mr. Truman has sent a message to Byrnes at Paris thanking him for his forebearance and understanding throughout the Wallace controversy. Byrnes has maintained strict silence.

4. Mr. Truman's stated approval—later withdrawn—of Wallace's New York speech last Thursday which touched off the uproar is being explained by some of his aides as having been given after hearing only a disjointed reading of the text. Because of frequent interruptions to handle other business, these aides say, he did not discover the explosive nature of the address.

In cancelling that endorsement Saturday, Mr. Truman said he had intended to approve only Wallace's right to deliver the speech. This statement, in turn, was welcomed by Wallace as indicating a presi-

Two Saugerties People Injured in Accident

Robert Cartright, 25, of Saugerties, and Miss Virginia Slater of Saugerties were injured in an early Sunday morning accident when the car operated by Miss Slater left the road just north of the junction of Glasco road and route 9-W in the town of Saugerties and struck a pole.

Both were taken to Kingston Hospital for treatment of injuries. Miss Slater, who suffered a dislocated collar bone, was discharged from the hospital Tuesday but Cartright remains at the hospital. He has a possible fracture of the skull, dislocated hip, broken left arm and possible internal injuries. His condition today was reported as fair.

According to State Trooper C. F. Bixby, Miss Slater, probably fell asleep at the wheel and lost control of the car. The accident happened about 2 a. m. Sunday.

Mr. Cartright is a graduate of Union College and had been studying law in the office of District Attorney Louis Bruhn. He planned to attend Albany Law School this fall. He served during the war in the navy.

HERZOG'S

Foreign Policy Showdown Due

dential okay for him to carry on his campaign.

Thus the commerce secretary followed up on Monday with his own statement that he intended to make more speeches on foreign policy—the next presumably the one set for Providence.

It was this declaration, coupled with yesterday's release of the July letter, which apparently brought Mr. Truman to the point of determining that he had to act decisively on Wallace's position in the government.

Byrnes Silent

While Byrnes remained silent, the President has been under steady State Department pressure to act to preserve what the department considers the essential unity of American foreign policy.

Clayton said yesterday he assumed any further speeches by Wallace on foreign affairs would be cleared with the department.

Wallace aides countered by telling newsmen privately that if the President so ordered, the speeches would be cleared with the State Department, but since Wallace is fighting that branch he would not expect to make the changes it might suggest.

Wallace's New York speech prompted Adm. William H. Standley, this country's wartime ambassador to Moscow, to declare that the commerce secretary "has sabotaged our ship of state."

"He is not only guilty of disloyalty to his President and nation," the retired naval officer and diplomat said in a speech at Los Angeles last night, "but he has given aid and comfort to a virtual enemy, an offense for which, in time of war, he could be shot."

In his July 23 letter to Mr. Truman, Wallace set forth his conviction that the United States should adopt at once a policy "to allay any reasonable Russian grounds for fear, suspicion and distrust" as the only basis on which to build a workable peace.

The letter was in response to a presidential request to cabinet members for their views on foreign policy.

Wallace Proposals

Wallace proposed specifically:

1. The United States should find out "from a fresh point of view" what the Russians demand for their security and "we should be prepared, even at the expense of risking epithets of appeasement, to agree to reasonable Russian guarantees of security."

2. The United States "should be prepared to negotiate a treaty" stating definitely when and under exactly what circumstances of international control it will scrap its atomic bombs. Wallace assailed the Baruch-Acheson proposals now before the United Nations because he said they would allow this country to decide for itself at what stage of progressive international control it would stop making bombs and eventually destroy those it has. This, he argued, offers small comfort to Russia.

3. The American government should "make an effort to counteract the irrational fear of Russia which is being systematically built up in the American people by certain individuals and publications." He contended that the Russian and American political and economic systems can exist peacefully together in the world.

4. The United States should stop acting "as if we too felt we were threatened in today's world—any talk on our part about the need for strengthening our defenses further is bound to appear hypocritical to other nations."

5. The United States should undertake to negotiate a loan with Russia without demanding beforehand that the Soviet Union agree to negotiate certain political and economic concessions. This is a demand which Byrnes and the State Department have insisted upon.

6. The President should send a trade mission to Moscow to discuss the broad field of Russian-American trade possibilities.

In that letter Wallace generally avoided the head-on conflicts with State Department policies which became evident in his New York speech last Thursday. Then he called for recognition of Russian and American spheres of influence, blasted the evolution of a "tough" policy toward Russia and criticized what he viewed as close links between American diplomacy and British "imperialism."

Indicted for Dealing In Bogus Sugar Stamps

Portland, Me., Sept. 18 (AP)—A Federal grand jury yesterday indicted a Greenwich, Conn., man and three Maine men on charges of dealing in counterfeit sugar rationing stamps.

When the quartet was arrested in June, U. S. District Attorney John D. Clifford, Jr., said stamps good for 11,000 pounds of sugar were involved.

Gus Fragus of Greenwich, George Olum of Auburn, Emanued Angelibes of Lewiston and James Garofalopoulos, alias James Garfield, of Bath, were named jointly in bills charging conspiracy to violate the second War Powers Act by transferring counterfeit stamps.

Separate indictments accused them of possession and transfer of such stamps, in five counts against Fragus, two against Garfield and one each against Olum and Evangelides.

Truesdell Claims Record of Tire Luck

Monroe Truesdell, fire extinguisher agent of Malden, is claiming the record of tire luck. He has driven his Americar 55,000 miles with the original tires and never had a flat on the road.

"How do you do it?" asked another autoist and Truesdell replied, "Oh well, first of all I drive at a uniform speed, never over 50 miles an hour. I retard my gas before I get to the turn, drift around on momentum, never rush up to the red traffic light too fast, and I keep the tires always evenly inflated."

"Another thing," he continued, "I always use first or second gear on steep hills, and all this helps me to please my wife by getting home at 5:30 p. m. for dinner."

Hotel Crisis Greatest In New York History

New York, Sept. 18 (AP)—What hotel men call the worst hotel crisis in New York city's history was disclosed today by a survey of hotels, Y. M. and Y. W. C. A.'s and even Turkish baths.

The Travelers' Aid Society said the influx of visitors to the city had gone "out of control," and that large hotels were booked solid for a month, small hotels for at least a week, Turkish baths were being used and persons even were seeking refuge in subways and railroad stations.

One spokesman said "the trouble seems to be, now that the war is over, that foreign business is picking up fast while the wartime domestic business hasn't leveled off." Other causes listed by the harried hotel men were the strikes.

36,000 Butcher Shops Are Closed All Over Country

Meat Situation Is Bound to Grow Worse Is Prediction of Association

Chicago, Sept. 18 (AP)—Lack of fresh meat since retail price controls were reestablished on September 9 has resulted in the closing of at least 36,000 of the nation's butcher shops, says the National Association of Retail Meat Dealers.

The situation, says an association spokesman, will become "progressively worse." He said that a survey of the organization's 60,000 members disclosed that between 60 and 75 per cent have closed their shops because of the sharp decrease in meat production.

The American Hospital Association said it has asked the Department of Agriculture and Office of Price Administration to find a way to supply hospitals with meat.

The National Association of Hotel and Restaurant Meat purveyors, a group of 300 dealers who sell only to hotels and restaurants, reported that their members were virtually out of business.

Sunspots Affect Radio And Cable Operations

New York, Sept. 18 (AP)—Radio and cable operations to overseas points were seriously interrupted yesterday and early today by sunspots, communications firms reported.

R.C.A. Communications, Inc., reported short wave reception was very bad throughout the night but long wave radio was not seriously affected.

Press Wireless, Inc., said reception between Europe and the United States was very bad during the night, but radio channels to South America remained virtually normal.

Western Union reported its trans-Atlantic cables were affected. However, news services using Western Union cables to Europe said those lines were not affected as seriously as radio communication, which were "blacked out" at intervals during the night.

An announcement said a Republic XP-84 Thunderjet had been timed officially at 611 miles an hour and unofficially at 619. Further efforts will be made, the army said, to beat officially the mark of 616 miles an hour established early this month by a British twin-jet Meteor.

Against Third Party

Miami Beach, Fla., Sept. 18 (AP)—Sen. Claude Pepper (D., Fla.), a figure in speculation about presidential possibilities, was firmly on record today against a third party, which he said would constitute political folly. Albany, N. Y., Sept. 18 (AP)—Governor Dewey today proclaimed Sunday, September 22, Interfaith Day. Wilbert Snow Is Choice Of Conn. Democrats

Hartford, Conn., Sept. 18 (AP)—Lt. Gov. Wilbert Snow, Wesleyan University professor of English and poet, was the Connecticut Democratic candidate for governor today and destined to oppose his former Wesleyan superior, Dr. James L. McConaughy, Republican, in the November election.

Dr. McConaughy, former president of Wesleyan, won the Republican gubernatorial nomination last week.

The Democrats at their convention yesterday, also nominated Joseph M. Tone of New Haven for U. S. senator, to oppose the Republican candidate, Gov. Raymond E. Baldwin.

Snow's nomination came with what appeared to be surprising suddenness to the convention's 1246 delegates who had expected to be in the midst of a furious floor fight between Snow and former Economic Stabilizer Chester A. Bowles of Essex for the nomination.

The Wesleyan professor was nominated by acclamation on a motion by Bowles after a first ballot vote gave him a substantial lead over Bowles and three other candidates. Thomas J. Dodd, chief American prosecutor at the German war crimes trial, Mayor John S. Monagan of Waterbury and former Mayor Alfred N. Philipps of Stamford.

Special Pacts Got Trucks Moving to Carry N. Y. Food

New York, Sept. 18 (AP)—Trucks carrying food to empty stores and newsprint for newspapers rumbled through New York city streets today after operators whose trucks had been strike-bound since August 31 signed individual pacts with three striking A.F.L. teamster locals.

As Mayor William O'Dwyer predicted that local truck operations would return to normal "well before the end of the week," union leaders reported that 2,925 of the some 15,000 truck drivers had been instructed to return to work after 456 employers signed individual agreements.

The contracts awarded the principal classification of drivers $71.40 for a 40-hour work week. The old scale was $64 for a 44 hour week.

The opening wedge in the resumption of movement of commodities came yesterday when the membership of Local 807—key unit in the dispute—approved a compromise plan embodying the new increases advanced by H. C. Bohack and Company, a chain food store, and Daniels and Kennedy, newsprint truckers.

Eating Places Plan Court Action on Price Roll Back

(By The Associated Press)

Hotel and restaurant associations announced today they planned court actions to test O.P.A.'s right to roll back meat menu prices to June 30 levels.

The O.P.A. action in restoring ceilings on meat meals already has resulted in restaurant closings in some parts of the nation, the spokesmen said. Other eating places may shut down in the near future because of the O.P.A. move, they added.

"This latest action by O.P.A. has brought about a crisis, which is threatening the very life of the public feeding industry," they said.

Terming the O.P.A. action "discriminatory," they said it was "the public feeding operators' contention—and always will be—that our prices should be based on present costs plus customary mark-up."

Public Health Nurses

Department of Agriculture, said. House said no immediate improvement was likely, adding that some of the personnel in a few of the packer branch houses had been laid off temporarily.

American Civilian Held in Yugoslavia

Picked Up While Taking Pictures on Jeep Tour

Belgrade, Sept. 17 (Delayed) (AP)—U. S. Embassy sources here said today that Roy H. Stoeckel, an American civilian employed with the U. S. Army Ordnance Department at Wels, Austria, had been missing since July 15, when he reportedly strayed into Yugoslavia while on a jeep tour of Austria.

An embassy official said he had learned of the case only after Stoeckel had sent a letter to the British vice consul at Ljubljana from Maribor, Yugoslavia, near the Austrian border, where he said he was detained by Yugoslavs. The letter, which was dated July 16, was delivered with Stoeckel's jeep to the British vice consul on July 20.

The British advised the U. S. Embassy, but the official said the Yugoslav foreign office had not given any information as yet of Stoeckel's whereabouts.

Stoeckel's letters said he was on a holiday jeep tour of Austria, and had been taking photographs en route. He said that while driving from Fehring to Radkersburg in Austria, the road passed several hundred yards inside the Yugoslav frontier. He said that the frontier was not marked by a roadblock or posters.

In a village where he was taking photographs, two unarmed Yugoslav soldiers stopped him and informed him that he was inside Yugoslavia, he wrote, and passed him through army channels to Maribor for questioning.

Chandler and Best To Stand Treason Trial

Washington, Sept. 18 (AP)—While a score or more Americans suspected of wartime aid to Germany are being hunted in Europe, two now in custody will be returned here shortly for trial on treason charges.

Douglas Chandler and Robert Best, accused of having broadcast Nazi propaganda over Radio Berlin, will be flown to Washington from the army prison camp at Obrusel, Germany.

In announcing this last night, the Justice Department said 15 former employes of the radio station have agreed to testify against the pair.

Tito's Government Arrests Archbishop

Belgrade, Sept. 18 (AP)—Premier Marshal Tito's government announced today the arrest of Archbishop Alojzije Stepinac on a charge of "crimes against the people" and made provisions for trying him with 18 prisoners before a court.

Stepinac heads the Roman Catholic Church in Yugoslavia. The government said he was arrested in Zagreb.

The public prosecutor obtained a seven-day postponement in the trial of the 18—who include 12 priests — on charges of war crimes and collaboration in order to prepare an indictment against Stepinac so he could be placed in the dock with them.

The main defendant in the trial is Col. Eric Lisak, who was chief of the security police of Gen. Draja Mihailovic, recently executed.

Lisak fled to Austria after the war but later returned and is charged with organizing Terrorist Ustachi bands under the name of "Crusaders."

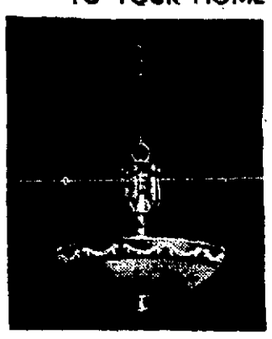

Ivan Schalic, the archbishop's secretary, testified in the trial of the 18 yesterday that Lisak had spent a night at the archbishop's house and that the "Crusader" flag had been blessed in the archbishop's chapel.

The arrest was believed to have resulted from this and other testimony allegedly linking the archbishop with the Ustachi. The government did not announce details.

Will Fly Weather Planes

Washington, Sept. 18 (AP)—The army air forces disclosed today a plan to fly B-29 weather reconnaissance planes daily over the length of the Aleutian chain, which juts out into the North Pacific. The flights will begin in about a month. Similar flights by the big bombers, converted to handle a variety of meteorological equipment, are being made daily over a 2,462-mile route from Merced, Calif., to Anchorage, Alaska.

TROUBLE AT A PRICE

Fortune telling for a fee provides comers with anything from casual entertainment to family upheaval. It all depends on how the customer takes it, but sometimes the interpretation is not entirely within the customer's control.

In states where fortune telling requires a license, the soothsayers operate behind such transparent screens as "Crystal Tearoom" or "gifted reader." A reporter who visited a score of such self-made oracles in one city found a consistent theme of family complications. Divorce, re-marriage and family disagreement recurred in their predictions, which, incidentally, bore no relation to his actual experience.

Pursuing his theory that the sandwich-and-tea-leaf proprietors did more harm than good, the reporter talked to workers at a social agency. Case by case, they revealed how women, already concerned about family friction, went to fortune tellers for guidance. The "advice" they received invariably was followed by more serious trouble. Although it could scarcely have been the major cause, it was a decidedly disturbing influence at a time when their affairs were already disturbed.

Persons in need of advice have access to specialists in problems of human relations. Clergymen are always ready to help, and all cities and counties have social agencies where someone makes a regular job of helping to untangle personal problems. The expert is always the best bet in the pursuit of a happier future.

Is there anything quite so inert and exasperating as a dead automobile 20 miles from civilization and mechanics?

MISSING DOORS

Now we hear of homes for veterans still vacant for lack of doors. Otherwise the houses are complete.

What has happened to G.I. ingenuity? Details never bothered the men who dug and furnished their own foxholes. Somewhere there must be enough odd boards, or sheet metal, or surplus collision mats from ships, or canvas to cover a frame, or some odd thing that would serve to keep out the wind and the weather until at least the outside doors could be obtained.

Such a makeshift might be beneath the pride of the builder, but it's a rare veteran who could be kept out of a new home for lack of a door.

CHESS AT THE OLYMPICS

The Olympic games to most people mean athletic sports, mostly track and field events. Not to everybody, for the committee in charge of the 1948 revival had an application for the inclusion of chess. Ping pong, roller skating and baseball also sought admission and all were rejected, some with hopes held out that later they might be acceptable.

These other sports are understandable as Olympic features, but why chess? Unless it could qualify as an outdoor sport by being played in the open.

For the first time since V-J Day Japan is to enjoy postal contact with the rest of the world—except Germany. Personal messages may be written on postcards in English, Chinese, Japanese, Korean, Russian, French or Spanish. Packages, limited to 11 pounds, presumably relief, may be sent weekly to Japan, but no packages can be sent out of that country.

Resumption of mail privileges, though limited, implies Japan's gradual restoration to the status of a civilized nation.

NEWSPAPER ADS

A Chicago mail order house spent $11,130,000 last year in newspaper advertising, a period when space was curtailed by newsprint rationing. This figure represented 79 per cent of the total advertising in all media used by the firm and about one per cent of the sales total, which amounted to over a billion dollars' worth of goods.

As the firm operates 604 establishments in 47 states, its large use of newspaper space must be taken as one more indication that this form of advertising brings the most customers.

According to the latest dictionaries, meat is an article of food which was popular in this country some time ago.

FCC AND THE PRESS

In all the excitement over international relations, we often overlook what happens at home. A case in point is a series of hearings held by FCC which developed into a trial of the New York "Daily News." In a word, when the "Daily News" applied for an FM station in New York, the FCC permitted itself to consider the policy, the editorial attitudes, the conduct of the news columns of a newspaper in a manner which, for a weaker publication, would have amounted to censorship. The mere hearing of this case, in this particular manner, was a warning to newspapers that unless they publish what is satisfactory to the FCC, they may not be permitted to own an FM radio station. It was indirect censorship. It was direct coercion.

The setup was this. The American Jewish Congress objected to the news and editorial policies of the "Daily News" and wished to suppress them, although this organization has for years attacked Hitler for suppressing newspapers and burning books. With a short-sightedness hardly understandable the officials of this organization fail to realize that their imitations of Hitler can only, in time, break down the constitutional and legal protections which safeguard them as well as all other Americans.

The right of a newspaper to take a position on a public question, whether it be the Communist "Daily Worker," or any other newspaper, is inviolable in this country. It either holds for all or it holds for none. For years, the American Jewish Congress issued a Bulletin which smeared every American as an anti-Semite who happened to disagree with its particular policies, which were, in many instances, wrong and some of which have proved, by subsequent events, to have been harmful to the very causes which the American Jewish Congress exists to serve. Yet, no one proposed suppressing that Bulletin, and it would have been an outrage against freedom of the press to suppress it.

The FCC is a dangerous bureau of government because it constantly expands its authority beyond the intent of the law. Recently the "American Mercury" published an article by a recent importation from England, Charles A. Siepmann, who regards himself as an expert on the American radio because he once worked for the British Broadcasting Corporation which is a government monopoly. Siepmann used the phrase: ". . . The public's trustee for radio, the Federal Communications Commission. . . ."

But that is untrue. It is also un-American. By virtue of the Constitution, sovereignty in the United States is vested in the American people, who delegate their authority to the Congress of the United States. The Congress may not, except for limited and specific purposes, delegate its authority to anyone. There are no trustees for the American people. In fact, Mr. Siepmann's use of the word "public's" is alien to the spirit of the American Constitution, which deals not with a mass of people but with the rights of each individual American.

It seems that Mr. Siepmann is annoyed with the American people because they do not become enthusiastic about a report issued by FCC entitled, "Public Responsibility of Radio Licensees." He says it is an able report; I say it is the bunk. Siepmann complains:

". . . But little or nothing has been heard directly from the listening public, the long-suffering group which has most at stake."

Who says that the American listening public is long suffering? Did you ever listen to the junk B.B.C. puts on the air? There is little variety, little to choose. In the course of a day's broadcasting, the American radio gives a potpourri of everything and the listener takes his choice. I like symphonic music and thrillers. "Mr. District Attorney" is one of my favorites. I have a son who likes "The Hit Parade" which I refuse to hear. I dislike the hits. I have another son who likes the cereal programs, "The Lone Ranger" being his favorite. I listen to the "Town Meeting of the Air" for instances of faulty reasoning which are so general on that program. A member of my family likes "The Catholic Hour." There is variety, change of pace, a program for every taste. Is only Mr. Siepmann's taste to prevail?

TREATMENT

Before the days of the X-ray, the knowledge of various organisms, the importance of vitamins, and the various laboratory findings, the physician had to depend on his general knowledge of various diseases and also depended to a considerable extent upon the knowledge he had of his patient, the patient's family history and circumstances. In those days the physician in treating a patient "had to make use of his intuition, his own personality as the patient's soother and advisor as well as his healer."

In recent years the physician has been able to get such "accurate" information from the laboratory, X-ray department and other hospital sources he naturally has not used as much "intuition" as in former years and has been treating the disease or case and not the patient.

It is because physicians are recognizing the mistake they are making in not treating the patient first and his ailment next that the new word psychosomatic medicine is now in general use. It gets its name from psyche (the mind and emotions), and soma meaning the body. Psychosomatic therapy (treatment) means treating mind and body, that is the patient as a whole.

Some weeks ago I referred to an article [illegible] somatic Medicine, by Dr. C. H. Cahn in the University of Toronto Medical Journal in which he emphasized the importance of the family physician giving the patient a complete examination from the psychosomatic standpoint before handing him over to a specialist who treats some definite disease — diabetes, heart, gall bladder and kidney disease, gall stones, ulcerative colitis, goiter or others — as the patient's emotions may be a cause or partial cause of the symptoms.

"The diseased patient feels something is wrong. How can anybody (any body) feel without having a mind, a nervous system to feel with."

It should be remembered that "illness is a dispute between the patient, and his disease", therefore it is best to treat the patient first, his disease second, and his symptoms last.

Caught in the Tie Up

Leaves From Boyle's Notebook

By JOHN R. WARD

Manila, P. I. (AP)—Students returning to shell-scarred Philippine University are finding that five years of war and occupation have wrought vast changes in the islands' education scene.

Most of the professors are back, but they are changed. All are wearing out-sized khaki suits, U. S. government issue. Khaki predominates among the men students, too, and few of them could be regarded as college "boys."

Many of the familiar faces are gone. As the days go by students tell innumerable touching stories —of the boy in political science who died across a whipping post in his home town, of the athletic by Japanese "thought police" and never seen again, of the studious Caviteno whose entire family was wiped out when a U. S. plane with bomb bays loaded plummeted into the center of the town.

Those university buildings not leveled by shelling were used as quarters for American G.I.s after the city was re-taken. The gutted buildings have been partitioned into classrooms with bamboo matting.

Ruins of War Everywhere

The tell-tale marks of war are everywhere. Steel reinforcing dangles from walls and roofs. Even the blackboards are bullet-riddled. The registrar is a harried individual whose records have been burned. Students are placed on their honor to list the courses they have taken and passed prior to the Japanese invasion.

The enrollment, about 2,000, compares with 8,000 before the war. There is no lack of prospective students. There simply is no place to put them. Far Eastern University, La Salle College and other schools in the Manila area report enrollment in excess of prewar figures.

Not Enough Schools

Schools have been slow in reopening throughout the islands. Secretary of Instruction Manuel V. Gallego reported that more than 525,000 children seeking admission to schools cannot be accomodated.

Gallego has authorized reorganization of schools by parent-teacher associations. A number have been opened in Neuva Ecija province in Central Luzon and the government has promised to resume their operation and maintenance as funds become available.

The Japanese destroyed virtually all textbooks and even seized typewriters to make small cookstoves for troops by removing the type baskets. The Japanese opened schools and forced children to learn "Katakana," a simple Japanese dialect. They taught thousands of small youngsters the dialect and some still speak it among themselves.

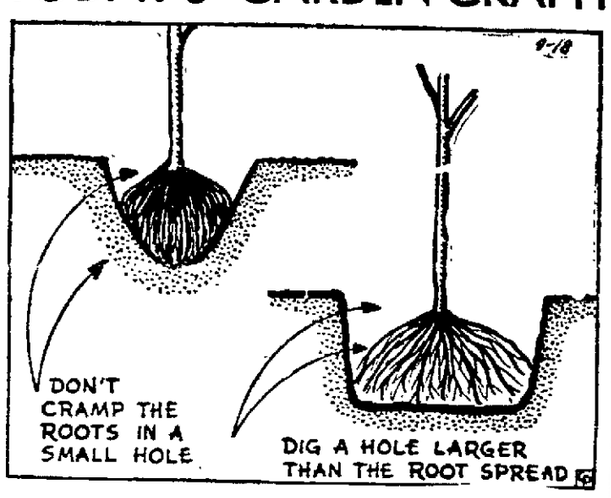

Wrong-Way Desks Hit

"Why do typists' desks have the kneehole on the left side, leaving the typist little room on that side for her notebook, papers and typewriter?" Miss Anne Morris has asked London furniture makers. Experienced typists read from the left, she says, and desk drawers should be on that side.

An Ancient Hangover

The mark of the illiterate in place of a signature, the X, is actually a hangover of the ancient sign of the Holy Cross which Christians put beside their signatures as an oath of good faith.

TODAY'S GARDEN-GRAPH

More to Planting a Tree, Than Digging a Hole

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Released by Central Press Association

THERE is more to planting a young fruit tree than just digging a hole. Give thought to selecting stock with a well developed root system, a well proportioned trunk and a head or crown that is symmetrical, well-balanced and low on the trunk. Each young tree should have numerous strong branches.

Fall planting of young fruit tree differs from spring planting, in that the tree should not be pruned back. The only pruning which should be attempted at this time is of broken or scraped branches.

Cut off any injured branch just below the injury, but not close to the tree's trunk for the object is to allow the tree to winter over without any wounds, or as small wounds as possible.

Digging the hole for a young tree is more important than it sounds. Don't dig a small hole—narrow at the bottom—and then crowd the roots into it, as illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph. You can cover up your mistake with a covering of top soil, but the tree will have a difficult time trying to live down your error.

Dig a big hole and one that is wide at the bottom. It is better to have the hole too large than too small. Make the hole large enough so that the roots can spread out naturally, as illustrated.

Roots which have become bruised or broken should be cut off. Place the tree the same height as it was growing in the nursery.

"At Century's Turn"

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

There was considerable excitement in the city on April 8, 1901, when the news of the sinking of the steamyacht Glenerie at the mouth of the Rondout creek spread rapidly.

The Glenerie was sunk when in collision with the steamyacht John McCausland, but the three crew members and the 12 passengers on the Glenerie were rescued.

The crew members were Captain Henry Blodgett; Pilot David Blodgett and Engineer William Blodgett.

Following the crash the McCausland whistled for aid, and the Cornell Line tugs C. D. Mills, John D. Schoonmaker, the Earl, and the Harry, steamed to the rescue of the Glenerie and succeeded in hauling the vessel to the flats on the south side of the dyke near the old lighthouse.

Later the Glenerie was raised and towed to the Hiltebrant shipyard at Connelly for repairs.

The collision between the two vessels recalls to mind the years when moonlight sails on the Hudson river were popular with the younger generation. Various organizations and groups of young people would charter one of the many steamyachts that plied the waters of the Rondout creek and the Hudson river, for a moonlight sail up the river to Saugerties, or down the river to Poughkeepsie, and sometimes as far as Newburgh.

The steamyacht was a regular means of transportation between Rondout and nearby ports on the Hudson river, and daily steamyachts plied up the river as far as Catskill, and down the river to Poughkeepsie, while there was also a route between Rondout and Eddyville.

With the advent of the auto era and the establishing of bus lines, traffic on the yachts dropped to such an extent that it was no longer profitable to operate them.

The steamyachts flourished in the bluestone era in Kingston and Ulster county.

I recall that the Common Council at its meeting on April 5, 1901, decided to build a stone tramway on the Wilbur road, from Abeel street to Pine street, to accommodate the stone traffic between Kingston and Wilbur.

Older readers will recall the stone tramway that extended through Higginsville and over the old Plank road, and the old stone sleds being hauled through the streets, loaded with bluestone quarried largely in Ulster county.

Much of this bluestone was used for sidewalks and also in building construction.

One of the finest constructed houses in the city is the old Sweeney residence that stands on Wurts street, at the top of the hill leading down to the Rondout Creek Bridge.

This house is built of bluestone.

Turning from yachts and bluestone to sports the annual meeting of the Ulster County Fish & Game Protective Association held on April 9, 1901, in the cigar store of Howard Myer on John street, elected Mr. Myer as president; Dr. A. L. Hill, vice president; J. R. Kenyon, treasurer, and W. C. Preston as secretary.

Big City Minus Matches

Cigarette lighters soared to prohibitive prices when Brisbane, Australia, had a match shortage. Wholesalers blamed lack of shipping facilities for the match situation. Anyway, matches were reported tougher to get than cigars, cigarettes or black market grog.

Truman Must Proclaim Reversal in Policy Towards Russia if Wallace Is to Remain as Secretary of Commerce

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Sept. 18—Henry Wallace has written himself out of the Cabinet of President Truman. The Secretary of Commerce can no longer be permitted to remain in the Cabinet unless Mr. Truman wants to proclaim a reversal of present policy toward Russia and humiliate Secretary Byrnes.

For what Mr. Wallace proposes in his letter to the President is that the Baruch plan of controlling atomic energy be scrapped and that the atomic secret be turned over to Russia on a mere pledge by the Soviets that they will not misuse the bomb secret.

Also Mr. Wallace proclaims that a policy of open appeasement toward Russia be followed because, he thinks, America herself has adopted a wrong attitude toward Russia since V-J Day.

The entire letter is not only pro-Russian but pro-Communist and ignores completely the Russian misbehavior in their occupied areas and other looting of American assets in European countries and the suppression of civil liberties in the zones they control.

Wallace Blames U. S.

Mr. Wallace overlooks the Russian abuses of existing agreements such as the Potsdam declaration. Mr. Wallace blames the United States—his own country—for provoking Russian distrust.

What is most amazing in Mr. Wallace's communication, however, is the comment that he talks with many American business men from time to time and that they want the armament budget reduced so their taxes can go down. He implies that the security of the nation can be dealt with on a dollars-and-cents basis instead of on a basis of actual or potential threats to our safety.

Mr. Wallace's letter is so much at variance with the policies followed by Secretary Byrnes that it almost implies that the latter has been militaristic and provocative instead of patient and forebearing in his dealings with the Soviets.

The net effect of the letter is to notify Russia that America is divided. This is precisely what started World War 2. Hitler thought America's isolationists and pacifists would keep America out of war and he could have a free hand to kill democracy in Europe.

As long as the Nazis thought America would not react to their aggression in Europe, they felt they could start the war. Had America been prepared or had even Japan suspected that the United States would enter the war, the course of history might have been entirely different.

Two Schools of Thought

There are two schools of thought on the matter of preparedness—those who believe that armament preparations induce wars and those who claim that adequate defense is a preventive. America tried the first scheme in the years between 1919 and 1941 and two aggressor nations—Japan and Germany—took advantage of our lassitude. Americans will not be dragged into a third World War by following the line of pacifism or isolationism or unpreparedness. Russia knows that only the United States can challenge her aggression. It is against America that Russia is making her drive today to get American troops and American diplomats out of Europe so that she can have a free hand on that continent.

Mr. Wallace would give Russia a free hand in eastern Europe, which would mean control of the Near East and the Mediterranean and eventually the west coast of Africa, the Azores and the same strategic advantages in approaching this hemisphere that Hitler sought.

Says Two Can Exist

Mr. Wallace says Communism and Democracy are like two rival religions and they can exist side by side. But he overlooks the fact that Communism uses totalitarian methods and enforces upon innocent persons an iron rule that takes away all liberties of the individual and keeps Americans and other nationals from free access to Soviet-controlled territories.

Mr. Wallace is proposing to a dictatorship state and a totalitarian government another Munich. But the American and British peoples have had their fingers burned once by that kind of policy and they will not be burned a second time.

Collectors desiring first day cancellations of the new five-cent airmail stamp to be placed on sale in Washington September 25 are reminded that 10 cents should be remitted for stamps to be affixed to each cover.

Two of the new stamps will be placed on each cover serviced. The reason for the double postage, the Post Office Department explains, is that the new rate will not be effective until October 1, and all first-day covers bearing the new stamp must be serviced under the existing eight-cents per ounce rate.

A collector may send covers already bearing a three-cent stamp so that only one five-cent stamp will be needed, but the Post Office Department will not undertake to handle any orders calling for it to affix a five and a three-cent stamp.

Similarly, first day cancellations of the new embossed airmail stamped envelope will require an additional five-cent airmail stamp. Rates for these as announced by the department are: one cover 11 cents, two 21 cents, three 32, four 42, five 52. A maximum of five envelopes and no more than 10 covers to bear the adhesive stamp may be ordered. Covers for the latter and orders for the stamped envelopes should be sent to the Postmaster, Washington 13, D. C.

The new stamp will feature a modern type, four-motored transport plane in flight and will be red in color. The embossed stamp on the envelopes will conform in style, design and color to the postage stamp.

According to Senator Chavez (D.-N. Mex.), the design for the forthcoming New Mexico centenary commemorative stamp will consist of a front view of the old Governor's Palace at Santa Fe, with Gen. It was Gen. Kearny who entered Santa Fe August 18, 1846, during the war with Mexico to secure that territory for the United States. He organized a civil government there and became the first military governor of the state. Later he was the first civil governor of California.

Hotel Musicians Win 20 Per Cent Increase

New York, Sept. 18 (AP)—The lilting strains of the waltz, the frenetic beat of jumpin' jive and the rhythms of the rhumba and samba, will echo again tonight in most of the 58 New York hotels which have been without music because of a strike.

End of the 15 day walkout came late yesterday during a conference at city hall between Mayor William O'Dwyer, hotel men and representatives of Local 802 of the A.F.L. American Federation of Musicians, at which the hotel leaders agreed to pay the same 20 per cent wage increase which averted a strike in night clubs last Saturday.

The musicians will be called to ratify the agreement at a meeting Friday. The pact also includes time and a half for overtime, $5 extra for New Year's eve, no reduction in the size of presently employed orchestras to make up for wage boosts, and extra pay when actual hours exceed playing hours. Members also will not be required to play a show longer than one hour without a 15-minute intermission.

In Chicago, James C. Petrillo, president of the A.F.M., said the strike's end would restore music not only in hotels here but in chain-affiliated hotels all over the nation where sympathy strikes had been called.

Woodstock, Sept. 17—The song services which are held at the Lutheran Church every Thursday night are enjoyed by all those attending. Both young and old alike gather at the church at 8 p. m. and sing their favorite gospel hymns. The programs are in charge of Pastor Cook, ably assisted by Erwin Holumzer. Last Thursday the Rev. Marvine Yost of the Phoenicia Methodist Church favored the folks with a solo, accompanied at the organ by Mrs. Yost. He also gave a very brief message. Everyone is being welcomed to these song services and are asked to bring along their favorite hymns.

Judge Calls Jury's Verdict 'Disgraceful'

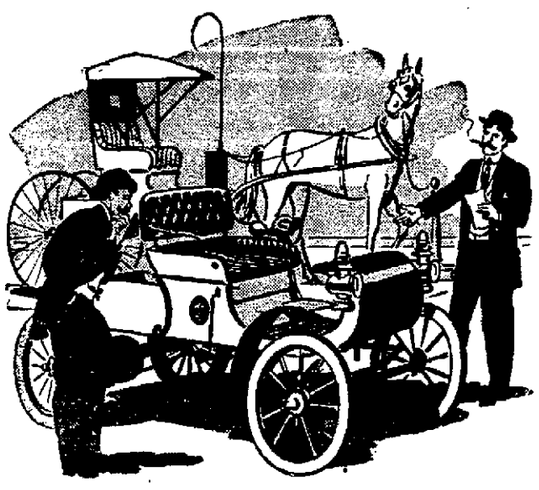

New York, Sept. 18 (AP)—An all-male Queens county jury last night acquitted George L. Rabidoux, 40-year-old former Brooklyn patrolman, of charges of supplying a Brooklyn holdup gang with arms and ammunition used in the $6,179 robbery of a paymaster June 28.

But as he stepped from the courtroom, Rabidoux was arrested by federal investigators on charges of violation of the federal firearms law prohibiting the possession of an unregistered submachine gun.

Judge Thomas Downs told the jurors after they returned the verdict:

"You have rendered one of the most disgraceful verdicts in the history of this court. After the disgraceful exhibition of this defendant on the stand, I don't see how you could reach such a verdict."

Here is a true fish story that is not only catching, but scientific enough to keep one from biting. Incidentally it was the favorite funny story of the late Zane Grey the novelist.

Captain George Walker, of Savannah, Ga., used to have an employe on his Georgia plantation who loved rest and fishing. When he was not fishing he was loafing and when he was tired of loafing he would go fishing.

One night it rained almost heavily enough to be called a cloudburst, and the next morning all of the low places on the plantation were flooded with water.

Passing his tenant's cabin, Captain Walker found him seated in an easy chair outside the kitchen door, fishing in a small puddle of water that had formed there.

Captain Walker (exclaiming)—Henry, you old fool, what are you doing there?

Henry—Boss, I'se jes' fishin'.

Captain Walker—Well, don't you know there couldn't be any fish in that little puddle?

Henry—Yessuh. Ah knows dat, but his yere place am so handy.

Husband—Why did you keep me waiting on this corner for two hours when you said you were merely going to step in and ask how Mrs. G was?

Wife—Well she insisted on telling me.

Be Friendly

Friendliness is what our world needs today, if we are going to survive—friendliness among nations in the neighborhood, on the job in our churches and service clubs, within the family. The best place to increase friendliness is in the heart of each one of us. Any group—church or club—reflects the spirit of its members. Friendliness is many things. It is personal sacrifice in the little things of daily living; faithfulness in thinking of the other fellow's welfare.

Sometimes we lose our balance momentarily, righting ourselves barely by the skin of our teeth, or by a helping hand from the fellow in front or behind us. Our journey is made a lot more comfortably if we are provided with the balancing pole of friendliness. It is as inexpensive as a toothpick yet it means so much. No one knows how soon or often he will need the same kind of help. "Be Friendly" is a wonderful motto to follow EVERY day.

Judge—Now sir, please tell the court just what passed between you and your wife during the argument?

Man—Six plates, a kettle, and her new radio.

Certain After-Dinner Speaker

His speeches to an hour-glass
Do some resemblance show;
Because the longer time they run
The shallower they grow.

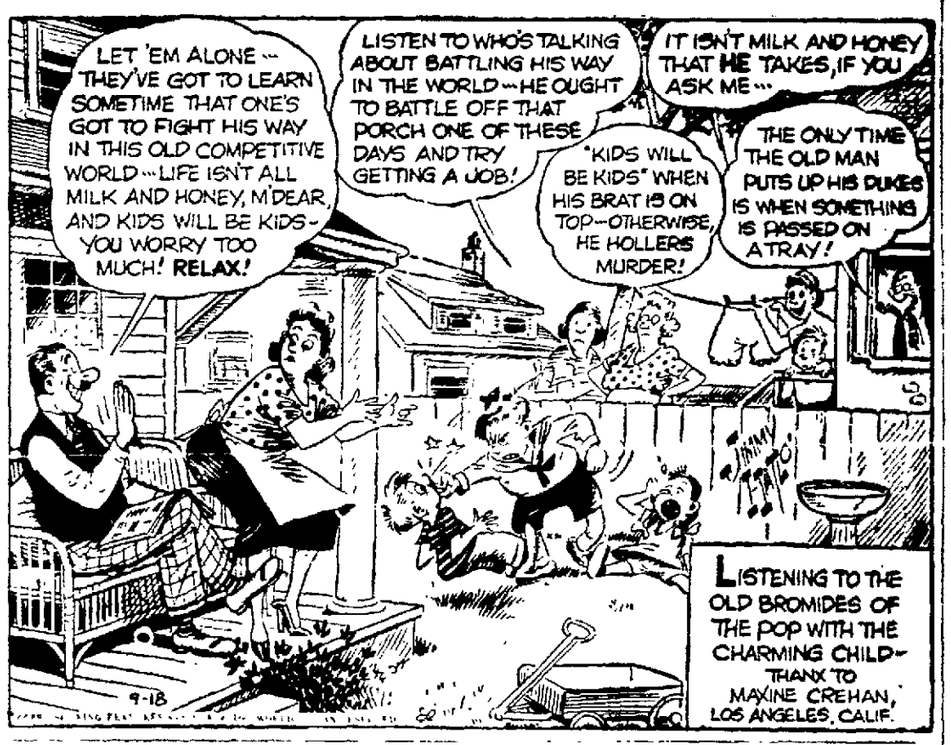

First Girl—How do you make love?

Second Girl—You don't. You just stand still and defend yourself.

THE BEST WAY TO GET ALONG IS NEVER TO FORGIVE AN ENEMY OR FORGET A FRIEND.

Two Big Banking Houses Ready To Take Over in Economic Field

By JOHN SCALI

Washington, Sept. 18 (AP)—Two multi-billion dollar international organizations aimed at providing a solid economic foundation for lasting peace may begin full-scale operation because the year is out.

After nearly four years of painstaking discussion and planning, the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development and the International Monetary Fund are nearly ready to help the needy nations of the world.

Armed with more than $15,000,000,000 in resources, these twin institutions hope to inaugurate a new era in relations among countries by extending the principle of joint international cooperation into the economic field.

Then 39 member governments who are backing their faith in these two experiments with cash contributions will send representatives to Washington September 27 to write the last rules and regulations. About 90 days afterward, both organizations hope to open for business.

Economic Causes Promote Wars

The International Bank and Fund represent a collective effort to profit from the mistakes that led to two world wars. They are based on the belief that wars almost always spring from economic causes.

Stripped of technical language, the remedy proposed is to increase orderly trade among all nations, under the watchful eyes of international organizations entrusted with making sure that all abide by agreed rules.

How do the International Bank and Fund fit into the picture?

Specifically, by the use of their treasuries, they will seek to:

Maintain the currencies of each country on stabilized level, thus creating increased trade possibilities by giving the people of each country confidence in their own money and in that of other countries.

Lend money of any kind on a short-term basis to member nations lacking funds to pay for purchases from other countries, because of unexpected economic setbacks. This will make it possible for such countries to continue buying imports, many of which are needed before they can manufacture articles for export.

Build at Low Interest

Foster reconstruction and development in countries, especially those devastated by war, by granting long-term loans at low interest rates. This aid will make it possible to rebuild industries and even to construct new ones which can provide goods for the inhabitants and some for export.

The degree of success achieved will not be apparent for many years because the problem is a long-range one. Another international organization, still in the planning stage, first must come into being.

This newcomer is the International Trade Organization, sponsored by the United States, which its advocates hope will be established late in 1947.

While the bank and the fund furnish the money needed to increase commerce, the trade organization will seek to reduce tariffs and eliminate other restrictions that impede the flow of goods between countries.

The late President Roosevelt, a pioneer in the founding of both the fund and the bank, stressed the importance of their task in these words to Congress less than two months before his death:

"They spell the difference between a world caught again in the maelstrom of panic and economic warfare culminating in war—as in the 1930's—or a world in which the members strive for a better life through mutual trust, cooperation and assistance."

HEADLINES . . . . .

Look through almost any newspaper and you'll probably see one or more headlines just like these. This particular collection was gathered in a week or more, clipped from various newspapers. However, as a housewife, you probably do not need to be reminded of the rising cost of living. Each time you lay your money on a counter to pay for food, clothing and the other necessities of life, you are well aware of the fact!

Among other things, these headlines speak of increases of 5¢ a pound in beef and lamb; 3¢ a pound in pork. Do you realize what a single penny means to you electrically?

A penny's worth of electricity . . . . .

Will wash 56 tablecloths or 120 shirts or 1000 handkerchiefs. or One electric penny will vacuum-clean 6 large rugs. or Make 5 waffles or Brew 20 cups of coffee or Toast 35 slices of bread!

Of course you know that there has been no increase in the price of electricity. As a matter of fact, electricity is now lower in cost than it was before the war! Can you think of any other article or service in daily use in your home which has a record such as this?

Garden Club Hears Paper on Old Kingston Gardens at Meeting

The September meeting of the Ulster Garden Club was held Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Searing Leaycraft in Woodstock. After the business meeting, Mrs. Charles R. Hall spoke on "Kingston Gardens of the Past." Many of the owners were among the first Garden Club members.

She began with the garden of Mrs. DeForrest Smith (early 1900's) noting that Mrs. Smith was the first woman in Kingston to have a planned garden as opposed to just flowers. Mrs. Smith utilized the native blue stone and had a pool as a central figure with water lilies and a fountain in the form of a lotus flower. The garden showed an eastern influence in its shape and its summer house with the thatched roof and was not only the first but one of the most original and beautiful of Kingston gardens.

Mrs. William Carter's garden on Manor avenue had its glass walk, many trees and flower beds edged with borders of white and yellow sweet alyssum. Later her garden was arranged where St. John's Rectory now is. This was a green room edged with privet and flowers in the background ran from the house to the gazebo. She also described Mrs. Charles Tappen's charming back yard garden and the gardens of Mrs. George Washburn and Mrs. George Hutton with rustic trellises similarly located but each different from the other. She also spoke of Mrs. John D. Schoonmaker's garden and of Mrs. Edward Coykendall's garden with the bleached walk and balustrade from which one had a view of the neighboring church spires and the river. The round pool, backed by tall cedars with a figure in the middle of the pool.

Mrs. Hall said that while she was to speak only of Kingston gardens she felt she must mention the garden of Mrs. Hermon A. Kelley in St. Remy with its rustic bridge and naturalized narcissus. She also spoke on Mrs. Tappen's and Mrs. Hutton's work on school gardens during World War I and of the work the garden club has done at Academy Green.

Mrs. James O. Winston read a paper on the Senate House and the important part it played in New York and national history. She described the house with its Colonial kitchen, tiles and other items. She also mentioned the museum which the state erected in 1927 with its Vanderlyn portraits, the A. B. Parker collection of portraits and signatures of the governors of New York and the specimens of early arms and steam boat relics.

At the close of the meeting tea was served in the dining room and the grape arbor. Mrs. William A. Warren and Mrs. George Pratt poured. Refreshments were passed by Miss Jane Pearson, Miss Olive Lewis and Mrs. William K. Darling.

Kingston Girl Scout Committee Makes Strong Appeal for Troop Leaders and Assistants

"Women who are genuinely interested in the youth of today are vitally needed in the Kingston area," the Girl Scout Committee announced today in an appeal for troop leaders and assistants. "Unless 15 such women can be found, more than 150 girls will be deprived wholly or partially of the privilege of participation in the activities of Girl Scouting," is the report.

The committee believes that any woman over eighteen who likes girls and enjoys working and playing with them has an opportunity now to take part in a job which is just as important as the one she may have held during the war. "The working women in those years helped assure the country of a future. Now they are needed as Girl Scout leaders to help tomorrow's women make that future worthwhile."

The Girl Scout program aims to help every girl develop into a well-rounded individual capable of handling her share of responsibilities as a member of a democratic community. It includes moral and spiritual development as well as a knowledge of various skills. The program has been endorsed by Catholic, Protestant, and Jewish authorities, all of whom sponsor troops in the city.

All Girl Scout activities are coordinated under a national program with definite policies regarding the health and safety of members. One of these policies strictly enforced, requires that in activities such as hikes, camping, and field trips there be an adult leader present with every eight girls. Since the average troop numbers 24, there should be a leader and two assistants for every full troop in the city. At present 50 per cent of the troops are handicapped and several are on the point of disbanding for lack of leaders.

Volunteer Girl Scout leaders and assistant leaders are in urgent demand. All that is necessary to qualify is a conviction that girls are important and a certain amount of time to devote to Scout activities. Members of the local and national organization stand ready at all times to help.

Any women interested in furthering Girl Scouting in Kingston is asked to contact Mrs. Henry Page, chairman of the Kingston area, telephone 5190; or Mrs. Casper Souers, president of the Leaders Club, telephone 2697-M.

The following troops are most seriously in need of leadership: In Kingston—Troop 22, leader, two assistants; Troop 7, leader, Troop 11, leader; Troop 66, one assistant for Brownie Troop; St. Mary's Church, leader, one assistant; St. James Methodist Church, leader, one assistant; Troop 53, one assistant; St. Joseph's Church, three assistants.

In Port Ewen, Troop 51, leader; Troop 19, leader.

Good Taste Today

By Emily Post

(Author of "Etiquette," "Children Are People," etc.)

CONCERNING THE JUNIOR JONESES

A reader suggests that I write a piece about children who want to keep up with the Junior Joneses and the consequent strain on not well-to-do parents to meet the expense. It is my impression that the Joneses—parents and children—went out of the typical picture with the last of the powdered footmen, broughams and victorias.

Copying the general behavior and following the code of "the gang" much more accurately describes the characteristics of the young Smith, Browns and Robinsons of today. Whether we are parents, teachers or merely observing neighbors who know anything at all about the youngest generation we hardly can be unaware of the fact that between the ages of seven and seventeen, each and every true-to-pattern boy and girl wants to have and do, to talk and to think, to look and to be exactly like every other boy or girl he or she happens to know. Compared with the early urge to copy, that later inclination known as "keeping up with the Joneses" is scarcely perceptible.

Question of Interruption

Dear Mrs. Post: Does an employer or employe say, "Good morning" first? What would be correct?

Answer: Strictly speaking, the employer speaks first, but this is a rule very few people enforce or even notice further than not interrupting the employer if he is preoccupied, unless the employe has an important message to give.

Place Cards

Dear Mrs. Post: How large should a dinner be in order to use place cards to seat the guests? Is it the same for any party at which refreshments are served at the table?

Answer: Place cards for fewer than eight are unheard of, unless they are messages on presents. Twelve is the lowest number for which place cards actually are required.

That seemed to many delegates to draw an entirely new line in the 21-nation conference—the issues no longer lay between the victors on one side and the vanquished on the other, but between the Slav bloc, beaten or victorious, on one side, and the rest of the world on the other.

The United States has shown intense interest in the British proposal by holding up consideration of Romania's banned weapons clause until the Bulgarian dispute is settled.

Other delegates, meanwhile, made a three-pronged attack on the touchy problem of Trieste, with the Italian political and territorial commission and two sub-commissions working simultaneously on the future of that strategic Adriatic port.

The A.F.L. seamen ended their strike, begun September 5, when they were granted increases of $22.50 monthly on the west coast and $27.50 on the east coast. The C.I.O. unions won increases of $17.50 monthly in recent negotiations with ship operators.

"Lover Come Back"

Fans Await Big Amateur Boxing Show Here Thursday Night; Burke Still Undecided on His Maroon Starters for Friday

Sale of Tickets Picks Up After New Names Added

B'nai B'rith Spokesman Expects Sell-Out Throng at Municipal Auditorium Arena

Comment among local boxing fans, since the addition of three Golden Gloves champions from New England to B'nai B'rith card for Thursday night, indicates a record turnout at the municipal auditorium.

In addition to conversation about the title-holders strengthening the bill, ticket sales for reserved seats have picked up considerably and Dr. Murray Greene, chairman of this department, is confident of a sell-out tomorrow.

The New Englanders, all from Boston, slated to box for B'nai B'rith are Dominic Saia, 118; Jimmy McCabe, 132 and Tony Genovese, 145. From the same stable will come Mike Belandi, former 160-pound champion in New England.

In addition to the eastern stars, there'll be Buddy Matthews, New York city welterweight, who is in the same class with Tony Burrone, Schenectady sensation.

The complete card, five five-round bouts and two threes, is as follows:

Five Rounders

Buddy Matthews, New York city welter, who will box Tony Burrone at some future date vs. Tony Genovese, 145, Boston, Golden Gloves champion of New England.

Carmine Virgilio, 118, Poughkeepsie vs. Dominic Saia, Boston, Golden Gloves champion.

Tony Mauceri, Schenectady Boston, Golden Gloves champion.

Freddie Baia, Amsterdam middleweight vs. Mike Belandi, Boston, former 160-pound New England champ.

Willie Smith, Poughkeepsie vs. Roosevelt Flagg, Albany featherweight. Flagg is anxious to even the score with Smith, who holds a decision over him.

Three Rounders

Barney Emberson, Kingston vs. Jimmy Foster, Albany.

Carl Barnes, Albany vs. Tony Antonio, Schenectady.

The first preliminary will start at 9 o'clock.

Louis 9-1 Odds To Win His 23rd Title Go Tonight

Critics Almost Positive Challenger Mauriello Will Get it Early at Yankee Stadium

By Gale Talbot

New York, Sept. 18 (AP)—Joe Louis makes the 23rd defense of his heavyweight title tonight at Yankee Stadium, with Tami Mauriello of the Bronx being served up as the sacrificial goat.

There appears to be little doubt in anybody's mind, except possibly Mauriello's that Louis will retain his crown by a knockout, but some 30,000 are expected to be drawn to the big ball yard on the chance of seeing a lot of fight while it lasts.

Tami knows only to move forward and sling it out. Knowing Tami's ring habits the odds-makers are almost positive he will get it early. They are offering even money that Louis knocks him out inside five rounds, and 9 to 1—and even greater—that the champ wins. They have gotten very little action on either count.

While Mauriello does not appear to stack up as a serious threat to Joe's title, he would seem to have as good a chance as anyone else. He boasts a much better record than a majority of those who have tried to fight the big negro.

Though a notoriously poor trainer, he has, after all, lost only seven times in 77 starts and has knocked out some pretty good men. He has won 12 straight since 1944, is only 23, weighs close to 200, and is tough.

Critics agree that the champion is in even better condition than for the Billy Conn affair in June. His legs are firm and he still is wonderfully fast for such a big man. There is a growing suspicion that he hits harder than ever.

The weigh-in was scheduled to take place at Madison Square Garden at 12:30 p. m. (E.D.T.) Louis expected to do about 208, Mauriello 196.

Full Attendance Is Requested Tonight At K. A. A. Session

Vital Business Meeting Starts 8 O'clock at Elks' Club; Grid Team on Agenda

A full attendance of members is requested by President Tommy Davitt for tonight's important meeting of the Kingston Athletic Association at the Elks' Club on Fair street. The meeting will start at 8 o'clock.

Tonight's vital session is expected to be devoted largely to the proposed association's semi-pro football team which is slated to open the 1946 season at Port Jervis Sunday afternoon.

"I'd like to see every member out tonight," President Davitt said this morning. "We've made a great start in the organization already," he said, "but we still have a lot of work to accomplish and the only way it can be done is with the entire cooperation of all members."

Maroon Board of Strategy

Football fans of Kingston are keeping a close watch on the progress of Kingston High School's gridiron machine as the four new recently acquired mentors put the local squad through the paces at municipal stadium in preparation for Friday night's opening game with Haverstraw. While Coach Will Burke and Russ Cunningham supervise the work of the varsity moleskinners, Johnny Mahalic, ex-Temple student, and Al Gruner, last year's coach at Cornwall, have charge of the Maroon jayvee squad. Gruner is no stranger to local sport fans, for he played baseball in these parts before the war. The four grid bosses took a couple of minutes out the other day from the practice session for the above photo which shows Mahalic and Gruner kneeling in the front row and Cunningham and Burke standing in the rear. The Scoreboard

By RALPH COHEN
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

They used to call Carl Hubbell the "meal ticket" of the Giants when the great New York left-hander was [illegible] for Bill Terry about a decade ago. Today the experts are pinning the same tag on Howie Pollet, the hungry-looking portsider of St. Louis who will receive a good chunk of the glory if the Cardinals go on to win their ninth National League flag.

Pollet Wins 20th

The 25-year old moundsman who time and again has come up with that "must win" and halted a number of Red Bird losing streaks, hurled his 20th win of the season yesterday as the Cards hammered the New York Giants 10-2 to protect their two game first place margin over the Brooklyn Dodgers, who downed the Chicago Cubs 4-2.

Thus Pollet became the first hurler in the league to win 20 games, and also the first left-hander in the loop to reach the select mark since Hubbell and Melton of the Giants performed the feat in 1937.

The Cards romped on Monte Kennedy for two runs in the initial inning, and drove him to cover with a four run uprising in the fourth after two were out. Marty Marion and Stan Musial homered in the fifth and sixth innings, respectively, to pile up an 8-0 advantage. Willard Marshall ruined Pollet's bid for his fifth shutout by hitting for the circuit in the sixth and the Giants counted their final tally in the eighth. Enos Slaughter crashed a pitch into the rightfield stands with George Kurowski on base in the ninth to insure the Cards of their 12th win in 22 meetings with the Giants this season.

The Red Sox [illegible] Boston tonight for a two game series with the Braves that will terminate their final eastern trip of the year, have ten games left to play, while the Dodgers, playing host to the Pittsburgh Pirates in a three-game set starting with a double-header today, have 12 games left. If St. Louis wins six of its remaining games, the Dodgers will have to cop nine of theirs to tie the cards for the flag.

Walker Aids Victory

Brooklyn wasted little time sewing up its 4-2 victory over Chicago, scoring three runs in the first inning, two of them on Dixie Walker's two-base hit. The final run came in the sixth on Augie Galan's double and Walker's single.

Joe Hatten started for Brooklyn, yielded a run in the first and was relieved in the seventh by little Vic Lombardi after the Bruins pushed their last run home on Billy Jurges' double, a walk and Bob Sturgeon's single.

In the only other scheduled National League game, the red hot Boston Braves scored their fifth straight win by trouncing the Cincinnati Reds 8-2.

The Detroit Tigers won the only game scheduled in the American League, defeating the Washington Senators 6-4.

Says Boys Failing To Learn Plays Causes Headaches

Harry Koch Slated to Do Most of Punting in Gridiron Opener With Haverstraw High

The surety of Kingston High School's starting football lineup for Friday night against Haverstraw appears to be on par with the way the New York Giants were trying to find a good outfield combination for this year's play in the National League. This indication was gained Tuesday afternoon at municipal stadium as Coach Will Burke put his Maroon and White moleskinners through another extended practice under a blazing hot sun.

"I'm afraid I won't know the actual starting lineup until the whistle blows Friday night," Coach Burke told The Freeman when questioned about a possible starting eleven. "Most of the squad has come along in pretty good style," the new gridiron boss explained, "but I'm still having trouble with several boys who fail to learn plays. For this reason I'm at wits end trying to get a starting eleven together."

As the Maroon squad opened Tuesday rehearsal two regular would-be athletes—Big Ed Weaver and Louie Fuoco—were gracing the second team roster, and when the varsity and second stringers get together later in the afternoon for a scrimmage, both Weaver and Fuoco were still with the understudies.

Ever since Burke took over the football reins at K.H.S. following his successful tenure at Highland High, he has stressed the point to his charges that players playing for him will have to learn plays or else sit on the bench. "This must be the case," Burke said, "if we're to achieve any good results this year."

Koch Doing Punting

After putting his charges through another group of calisthenics Tuesday Coach Burke pulled his punters and punt receivers together for a workout which lasted about a half hour. Coach Burke was busily engaged in watching young Harry Koch, the Maroon center, who was getting off most of the punts.

"Harry is coming along [illegible] a kicker," Burke stated and he'll no doubt do most of the punting Friday night." Working with Koch was Captain Arnie Bellini and while giving his boys a close eye, the Maroon mentor talked about his punters. "I'd rather sacrifice some distance on punts in order to get the all-important height" he said, "and this is where Koch shines. Harry does get a lot more height with his boots than does Bellini who on the other hand gets off a longer kick."

The Maroon chief also supervised a long drill of his passers as Bellini threw numerous heaves to Dee Titus, Ed McCardle, Bill Crosby, Bill Blume, Joe Albany, Mike Rienzo and Tom McGrane. However, Titus, who shapes up as one of the better backs this year, will do most of the aerial work for the local club. Bellini is currently handicapped with a bad thumb which has been taped.

When the scrimmage started Tuesday Coach Burke used Joe Albany, Ed McCardle and Mike Rienzo as his varsity ends, "Babe" Riggins, Charlie Bouten, tackles; Joe Hill and Joe Carroll, guards; and Vince DeLuca and Harry Koch, centers. The backfield had Titus, McGrane, Bellini and Blume.

Coach Russ Cunningham's second stringers employed Ed Weaver and Warren Hyde, ends; Lou Fuoco and Harry Barnhart, guards; Chris Lay and Joe Esposito, tackles and Don Laidlaw center. The backfield had Bill Kitsos, Joe Gardeski, George Flemings, "Whip" Conlon, Bill Crosby and Tom Jones.

Night Drill Thursday

Coach Burke will trot his varsity candidates up to municipal stadium Thursday night for one final drill under the arclights before Friday's opening game. Most of the rehearsal will take in signal calling, passing, drop-kicking and points after touchdown.

Joe McCarthy Is Anxious to Return

Ex-Yank Boss Receptive 'to Good Proposition'

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 18 (AP)—Joe McCarthy, who piloted the New York Yankees to eight pennants and seven world championships, says he'll return to the Majors next year "if I get the right kind of proposition with the right kind of contract with the right owner."

McCarthy, who retired to his farm near here last summer because of failing health, said in an interview yesterday he's well again and "there's no use denying I'd like to be back" in the Major Leagues.

Clintons to Play Beacon in Final Playoff Contest

Paul Misove Nominates Art Barnes to Pitch September 29 Tilt at Beacon Field

The Kingston Gov. Clinton Market baseball team will meet the Beacon Recreations in the final playoff game of the Mid-Hudson Baseball League at Beacon Sunday afternoon, September 29.

The Gov. Clintons went into the final rounds by scoring a 5 to 2 victory over the Poughkeepsie Barth-Allan team last Sunday morning. Sunday afternoon in Beacon the Recs scored a 5 to 4 upset victory over the Newburgh Grandstand Tavern team.

Talking to a Freeman scribe this morning Manager Paul Misove said "Art Barnes will definitely pitch this game for us and I have full confidence in him. He has been pitching great ball for us all year long and has come along to be our mealticket."

Barnes was on the hill last Sunday morning when the Clintons defeated Poughkeepsie.

Manager Misove expects to have his regular league lineup ready for the final loop playoff contest with Jack "Daisy" Schatzel, Eddie Minasian, Jim Secreto and Andy Celuch cavorting on the inner defense while Mac Tiano, Jimmy Ashdown and either Charlie Bock or Earl "Red" Sleight patrol the outer gardens, George Zadany will do the backstopping.

In the Rough

By Charlie Tiano

Echoes of the second Wiltwyck-Twaalfskill duel which resulted in a decisive victory for the hosts . . . The weather was tailor-made and the refreshments up to the usual high standards. . . . Ike Trowbridge and Dr. Moseley played a singles match when their respective partners failed to show up. . . . Standing on the Wiltwyck clubhouse veranda, you could tell by the droop of their shoulders the twosomes in difficulty.

Walt Thiel and Frank Ball repeated their victory over the Danaher brothers in a brilliant display of golf. . . . Ball, the international competitor, flashed a 76. Thiel and Tom Danaher posted 77's, while Dick Danaher had trouble on the last nine for an 80. . . . Thiel and Dick Danaher birdied No. 1 and Thiel had a bird on No. 2. . . . Ball birdied No. 9 coming in. . . . The cards were: T. Danaher—OUT: 4-3-5-5-4-6-5-3-6—41; IN: 4-3-4-4-4-5-4-3-5—36, total 77; D. Danaher—OUT: 3-4-4-5-4-4-5-4-5—38; IN: 5-4-4-5-5-6-5-4-4—42, total 80; Thiel, OUT: 3-4-4-4-4-6-5-3-6—39; IN: 4-2-4-4-5-5-5-3-6—38, total 77; Ball, OUT: 5-3-5-4-4-6-6-3-3—39; IN: 4-3-5-4-4-5-4-3-5—37, total 76. . . . Tom Danaher's 36 was the best round. . . . The Wiltwyck pro missed perfect par on the last nine because of a bogey 5 on the No. 9 hole.

Reports are that Ed Modjeska tried to cut through the woods to forget it all when he was 3 down to Ray Le Fevere at the end of three holes. . . . Judge Cashin showed up for his match with Ed Tongue as predicted; Tongue won, as predicted. . . . No impromptu challenges were reported. . . . Incidentally, Lou Smith has posted $72 forfeit money with the writer for that 36-hole challenge match against Ray Le Fevre. . . .

We came out of the match with strictest neutrality having won as representative of Twaalfskill and Wiltwyck. . . . We gave Twaalfskill half a point more two weeks ago. . . . Had a swell time touring with Al Schmid against Van and Burt Haver. . . . We had Van two down at the end of 16 and then folded like a crease in a $12 suit to halve the match. . . . Al Schmid beat "Iron Man" Haver, 2 up. . . . "Iron Man" is no pun. . . . Burt played the entire course with irons.

Parring No. 3 at Wiltwyck isn't a cinch. Among the amateurs it was done just twice in 128 rounds of golf Sunday. . . . Jack St. Clair did it. . . . Who do you think got the other par ? ? ? Dick Danaher did it twice, Tom Danaher once and Thiel twice. . . . Ball missed it both times around. . . . Only nine 4's were recorded on No. 9 in the same 128 rounds. . . . Ernie Le Fevre hit par both times. . . . The pros went like this: Dick Danaher, once; Frank Ball, once, a birdie 3.

That isn't a No. 1 wood Eddie Modjeska uses for driving. . . . It's an auctioneer's hammer. . . . Maurice Davenport shot low gross of 78 to pace the field. . . . He carded 38 and 40. . . . Other top results: Jack St. Clair 38-42—80; John Van Gonsic 38-42—80; Ray Le Fevre 40-40—80; Fred Holcomb 43-39—82; Ed Remmert 41-52—83; C. Raichle 42-41—83; Roy Vogt 42-41—83. . . .

Art Buddenhagen of the Kingston Central Hudson office won the annual handicap tournament sponsored by the Central Hudson. . . . Paul Maguire of Poughkeepsie is the company champion for 1946 . . . Maguire defeated J. E. Doolittle of Poughkeepsie in 36-hole finals. . . . Buddenhagen defeated a field of 50 golfers to carry the prize to Kingston. . . . In the annual golf outing at the Dutchess Golf and Country Club, the winners in Class A, B and C were Foster Hawkes 78, George Schick of Kingston, 88, and Ike Benson, 107. . . . Clayton Smith and Dubby Raichle won prizes in the [illegible] division.

The Central Hudson tournament is an annual affair that has been going for 20 years. . . . The late T. R. Beal offered the first trophy. . . . The tourney one year attracted 125 entries. . . . This season the turnout was 55. . . . The low 16 players in scratch competition for the club title. . . . Others compete in the handicap tournament. . . . Prizes awarded by E. R. Acker, Central Hudson president, are silver plaques. . . . Golf balls are awarded winners in the handicap division.

Kingston entries in the tournament this season were Art Buddenhagen, Ike Benson, George Schick, Clarence Raichle, Clayton Smith, Tommy Bashall. . . .

Wiltwyck Golfers Winner in Local Inter-Club Match

Due apologies are offered to Tommy Danaher and his Wiltwyck Club golfers who defeated the Twaalfskill linksmen Sunday afternoon by the score of 39 to 16 in the second match between the two local clubs.

The apologies are offered due to the headline which appeared in Tuesday's Freeman indicating that Twaalfskill, and not Wiltwyck, had won the match.

Better Golf

By SAM SNEAD

3. Yesterday we mentioned the necessity of varying the stance with the club and we explained the principle that governs this change and the values the golfer gets in automatic control of the backswing and placement if he observes this golf fundamental. Pictured today we show a slightly opened stance with iron. What club would you, Mr. Golfer, say this player is using? Before you answer, notice his stance is slightly opened. Well, I am sure you have judged it correctly. With a stance so slightly opened as pictured here, the player is using a No. 1 iron. If the club were a No. 5 for example, the player would stand closer to the ball. His left foot would be turned at a 45 degree angle toward the hole. With his stance so changed for the No. 5 and his heels drawn nearly together, it would be impossible for the player, without forcing to take more than a three-quarter backswing. And this would be correct. And in this same way your backswing is limited correctly by the definite control of your stance.

Catholic Softball Playoffs to Resume Tonight at Block

Amato and Bigler Slated to Hurl; St. Mary's Holds One Game Edge So Far

Manager Jimmy Costello has named his ace flinger, Joe Amato, to hurl for the St. Mary's softball team tonight at Block Park in the regular Catholic Athletic Association playoff series with the St. Peter's club. Game time is slated for 6:15 o'clock.

Last week Amato flipped the Gaels to an 8 to 5 victory over St. Peter's after the clubs played a 1-1 tie earlier.

Opposing Amato will be Walt Bigler who worked against St. Mary's last week. "Babe" Larkin and Wolfe will do the respective catching.

Ex-Irish Star Gives Home Town Fans Royal Show

Boley Dancewicz Throws Three Passes Setting Up Touchdowns as Grid Yanks Win

Lynn, Mass., Sept. 18 (AP)—After being showered with gifts by his home-town admirers, Boley Dancewicz, former Notre Dame passing star, gave 10,000 of them a demonstration of his sharp-shooting last night while the Boston Yanks of the National Football League were drubbing their American Professional League farmhands, the Long Island Indians, 27-0, in an exhibition tilt.

The Yanks' initial touchdown was made during the first minute of play when Don Currivan intercepted a Long Island pass and raced 35 yards to score.

In the second period, Dancewicz' passes moved the Yanks within touchdown plunging distances for Gary Famiglietti and Ruddy Romboli and in the third period the Lynn marksman contacted Boris Dimancheff with a pass that set off a 40-yard touchdown run.

St. James Trims Port Ewen, 15 to 4

Clubs Meet Again Thursday at Loughran Park

After two tie contests, St. James took a one game lead in the Federation League playoff series Tuesday at Loughran Park by scoring a convincing 15 to 4 triumph over Port Ewen.

Next Game Thursday

The next game will be played at Loughran Park Thursday and may prove to be the final one. A win for St. James will give that club the softball championship. Should Port Ewen come through with a victory another contest will be played.

Osterhoudt and Fatum formed the winning battery yesterday while Davis and Walker worked for Port Ewen. The winners lambasted the offerings of Davis for a number of bingles, including homers. The stellar play of Ferguson, centerfielder, also aided in the important victory.

Men Quicker on Brakes

Cole's Market and the Stone Ridge Firemen are locked for first place in the Independent Bowling League with five triumphs and one setback apiece after Monday's second night of bowling at the Central Recreation alleys.

New York, Sept. 18 (AP)—The Newark Eagles, Negro National League champions, dropped the opening game of the 1946 Negro World Series to the Kansas City Monarch, Negro American League rulers, 2-1, last night at the Polo Grounds before 19,423 fans.

Satchel Paige came on the scene in the sixth for the Monarch's as a relief hurler and helped win his own game, beating out an infield hit in the seventh and scoring the deciding run.

The World Today

By GLENN BABB
(AP Foreign News Analyst)

Developments of the last few days give notice that the noisy, bitter wrangling at Paris over the frontiers of Bulgaria, Italy and Yugoslavia are only a pale prelude to the bigger frontier disputes yet to come. Secretary Byrnes for the United States, supported by a British Foreign Office spokesman, and Foreign Minister Molotov for the Soviet Union have laid the issue of the German-Polish frontier before the world. If and when the great powers dispose of the lesser tasks of map drawing in Europe they will be confronted with still greater difficulties and dangers when they approach the matter of setting the limits of the new Germany in the east.

The Russian position in a nutshell is that the matter is already settled, that the Potsdam conference, by a "historical decision," already has fixed Germany's Polish frontier and that any peace conference decision can be nothing more than formal confirmation. The American-British contention is that the line drawn at Potsdam was only provisional, for administrative purposes, and that exact definition of the areas to be transferred from Germany to Poland was to be left to the peace conference.

What Is Happening

What is actually happening is that the Soviet and Polish governments, taking advantage of some loose drafting of the Yalta and Potsdam accords and the stern truth that the Red Army is in complete control of the areas involved, are presenting the world with an accomplished fact which probably could not be upset by anything short of a major upheaval or change in Soviet policy. Poland holds the territory east of the line Swinemuende-River Oder-Wester Neisse, has moved some 2,000,000 Germans out and is continuing the process of clearing out all German population. Molotov tells the world that because the western powers knew of this mass eviction and accepted it without protest they have in effect admitted the validity of the Russian-Polish position.

Disregarded by Molotov

Molotov disregards this sentence in the Potsdam accord: "The three heads of government (Truman, Attlee, Stalin) reaffirm their opinion that the final delimination of the western frontier of Poland should await the peace settlement." The accord went on to say that "pending the final determination of Poland's western frontier, the former German territories east of a line running from the Baltic Sea immediately west of Swinemuende and thence along the Oder river to the confluence of the western Neisse and along the western Neisse to the Czechoslovak frontier x x x shall be under the administration of the Polish state."

Molotov argued, in his statement on Monday, that inclusion in the Potsdam Agreement of a section on "orderly transfers of German populations" bolstered the Russian-Polish position. This section said that the three governments "recognize that the transfer to Germany of German populations or elements thereof remaining in Poland, Czechoslovakia and Hungary will have to be undertaken. Molotov stretches this to apply to the "the territory assigned to Poland." Some of the framers of the Potsdam Agreement appear to have failed to forsee this interpretation, applied to areas assigned to Poland "for administrative purposes" as well as to areas indisputably Polish.

It should be noted that the Russians and Poles have not cheated themselves in their drawing of the Swinemuende-Oder-Neisse Line. They have set it well west of the lower Oder for sufficient distance to include Stettin, one of the major ports of prewar Germany. Stettin has become Szczecin, Polish settlers are placing the German population (which was some 270,000 in 1939) and evidence points to intentions to make the city the chief Baltic port of new Poland.

Woodcock Kayoes Lesnevich in 8th

Victory Puts Britain Back in Heavyweight Picture

London, Sept. 18 (AP)—Bruce Woodcock has put Great Britain back into the world heavyweight picture with his surprising knockout of World's Lightheavyweight Champion Gus Lesnevich, of Cliffside, N. J.

British sports fans, who have spent much of the postwar era seeing their heroes defeated by invaders, were heartened by the Doncaster fighter's performance last night in sending Lesnevich to the canvas in 1:40 of the eighth frame of their scheduled 10-round non-title bout.

The triumph of the British boxer was witnessed by a sellout crowd that paid $175,000 to get into Harringay arena.

Lesnevich weighed 181½, Woodcock 192.

Buckingham Unionized

London, Sept. 18 (AP)—Princess Elizabeth's maid carries a union card now and King George VI's valet has a personal interest in next month's Trade Union Congress, because Buckingham Palace has gone union 100 percent except for titled functionaries, the clerical staff and the sentry in the box.

Summer Temperatures

Ideal summer temperatures Tuesday followed the fall weather that had prevailed in Kingston for more than a week, with the official city thermometer recording a high of 83 degrees that afternoon. The lowest temperature yesterday was 53 degrees, while the lowest point reached last night was 56 degrees.

Squatters Leave After Court Order, Force House Issue

London, Sept. 18 (AP)—The back of London's 10-day-old squatter invasion was broken today as a result of court rulings, but the Communist-led squatters also appeared to have won a point by forcing the labor government to speed action to ease the housing crisis before winter.

Obeying eviction orders by the courts, the first of about 1,500 men, women and children began leaving the swank West End apartments they commandeered last week in moves of which the Communist party sought to make political capital.

But the government, after a special cabinet meeting last night, promised to find accommodations for anyone who had nowhere to go. There was no elaboration, but the Laborite Daily Herald later forecast drastic steps to prevent a recurrence of the situation, which the government earlier had termed "anarchy."

A Herald political correspondent write that he "understood" consideration was being given to the possibility of compulsory, temporary acquisition of property suitable for housing accommodations pending an easing of the general housing shortage, caused for the most part by German bombs.

Would Up Divorce Cost

Detroit, Sept. 18 (AP)—A Wayne county circuit judge believes that divorces, like everything else, should cost more these days. Judge Arthur A. Webster recommended that the present fee of $5 for uncontested divorces be raised.

U.S. Proposes That U.N. Study Greek Border Incidents

Lake Success, N. Y., Sept. 18 (AP)—The United States has drafted a far-reaching proposal that the United Nations Security Council name a fact-finding committee to study border incidents along the entire northern Greek frontier, including the areas adjacent to Albania, Yugoslavia and Bulgaria, it was learned authoritatively today.

The United States plan, in the form of a suggestion and not a formal motion, was due to go before the council at 3 p. m. (E.D.T.) when delegates resume the long debate on the Soviet Ukraine's complaint against Greece and Great Britain.

It was understood that Delegate Herschel V. Johnson's plan would call for a small committee of the council to undertake the study here and report as soon as possible. The committee also would be asked to study Ukraine charges that the Greek government was persecuting minorities, insofar as such a situation might provoke border clashes.

King Arthur of England was actually neither English nor a king. He was a victorious general of the Britains against encroaching Anglo-Saxons.

Rev. J. Pemberton Resigns Post in Methodist Church

The Rev. John Pemberton of Franklin street has submitted his resignation as Kingston District Superintendent of the Methodist Conference, effective on or about October 1, to accept the call of the Cape Island Baptist Church at Cape May, N. J.

In confirming the resignation, the Rev. Pemberton said he accepted the new charge after repeated invitations from the New Jersey congregation. He said he has served as guest preacher there for more than 10 years and had received numerous invitations from that church.

The last offer, the Rev. Pemberton said, was so attractive that he felt he could not turn it down. He said he regretted leaving Kingston at the present time and that it required considerable deliberation by him and Mrs. Pemberton before they could make up their minds to accept the new call.

The Rev. Pemberton received the appointment at the Conference held at Newburgh last May, and succeeded the Rev. Arthur G. Carroll, who went to the Washington Street Church at Poughkeepsie as pastor.

The Rev. Pemberton said the Cape Island Church was located only about two and a half miles from his home. He said he had been in that section a great deal and knew the people there very well. Their minister had left a short time ago and the congregation had been most insistent that he become their leader. After declining repeated calls, Dr. Pemberton said he was unable to resist the latest call and submitted his resignation as superintendent here, with the approval of his bishop.

Woodstock Voters Reject Proposal For Consolidation

position. Zena district approved the idea unanimously, 60 votes to nothing.

Last night's special meeting climaxed a long and intensive campaign by interested citizens of Woodstock for a ballot decisive enough to convince the New York State Education Department that Woodstock voters are opposed to the state's idea of consolidating with Shandaken and Olive.

Proponents of the Woodstock school said last night that results of balloting would form the basis for a strong argument against the consolidation plan. They said they felt the vote was decisive enough to force the State Education Department to give serious consideration to the Woodstock proposal.

The vote by districts was as follows:

Woodstock village: 249 for, and 4 against.

Zena district: 60 for, and 0 against.

Bearsville district: 664 for and 7 against.

Willow district: 274 for, and 30 against.

Wittenberg district: 2 for, and 24 against.

Lake Hill district: 14 for, and 4 against.

Shady district: 10 for, and 1 against.

Daisy district: 23 for, and 17 against.

Furniture Retail Prices Are Upped

Jump Allowed to Meet Production Costs

Washington, Sept. 18 (AP)—Price increases up to four percent at retail were authorized for lower-cost household furniture today as O.P.A. raised manufacturers' ceilings in a bid to step up production.

Covered by the higher ceilings are such items as bedroom furniture, dining room suites, tables, chairs and beds for children, kitchen and occasional furniture.

The manufacturers' increase, effective September 23, is five percent. This brings to a total of 30 percent the increase in manufacturers' ceilings over prices of March, 1942. Eighteen percent of this has been passed on at retail.

O.P.A. also announced that retail prices of brooms and mops are going up about one percent.

Ancient cosmographers believed it was so hot on that part of the earth directly beneath the sun that no life could exist.

Col. Ernest A. Steuding, chairman of the Kingston War Memorial Committee, announced today that the Women of the Elks had contributed $100 to the city's War Memorial Fund.

This committee was appointed to have charge of the plans for a permanent war memorial to the men and women of Kingston who served in World War 2.

The committee is hoping that at least $15,000 will be contributed to the fund before the close of the year.

Sheriff Hunting Driver of Auto In Tuesday Crash

Frost, a short distance from the scene of the accident, and summoned the Woodstock Fire Department which responded quickly and saved the truck from complete destruction.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Kessell was taken into the home of Mrs. Jesse Gilbert near by and Dr. Cohn of Woodstock was summoned. He treated Mrs. Kessell for a scalp laceration and also for bruises on the left leg and hand. Later she was taken to her home in Bearsville.

Ruso, driver of the truck, stated that he was not injured, having received first aid for minor cuts and bruises from Mrs. Frost, who is a nurse. He was then taken to the Kingston Hospital by Sheriff Smith for observation.

The driver of the passenger vehicle meanwhile had made a quick stop pulling to his right and landing against the bus but not doing any damage to it except scraping the paint. The auto was somewhat damaged in front and on the right side.

As the party returned from the home of Deputy Frost, it was discovered that the auto had disappeared. Witnesses said the driver had proceeded toward Bearsville but the sheriff's office said today that later questioning established the fact that he had turned around and returned in the direction of Woodstock.

The seven students who were riding in the bus were shaken up slightly but not injured. They were taken to their homes in taxis and the bus later proceeded under its own power.

The students riding in the bus were Wolfgang Bechtold, 16, and Walther Gardon, 16, of Bearsville; Grant Gilsinger, 14, Helen Gilsinger, 13, Ada Lou Neal, 17, and Roger Cashdollar, 15, of Wittenberg; and Joan Braddon, 15, of Mt. Tremper.

The truck involved in the accident is owned by E. J. Brownell of Grand Gorge.

Mrs. Kessell was reported resting comfortably this morning at her home in Bearsville. She is an art teacher in George Washington High School in New York and has been living in a cottage on the Bearsville-Wittenberg road while on sick leave.

New Episcopal Bishop Calls for 'Righteous Peace'

Philadelphia, Sept. 18 (AP)—The Rt. Rev. Henry Knox Sherrill, newly elected presiding bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the U. S. A., said "unless a peace of righteousness is reached soon" the catastrophe that befell Europe "can take place here."

The 55-year-old former Army chaplain who presently heads the diocese of Massachusetts, told reporters after his unanimous election yesterday at the church's 55th triennial general convention, "the necessity for Christian unity is imperative."

"How can we expect nations to cooperate unless the world's churches cooperate," he asked.

Bishop Sherrill, who gained the unanimous endorsement of the 153-member House of Bishops and the House of Deputies, will take up his new duties January 1, succeeding the Rt. Rev. Henry S. George Tucker, Richmond, Va., who recently reached the retirement age. The rank of presiding bishop corresponds to that of the archbishop of Canterbury in the Church of England, of which the Episcopal Church is the American counterpart."

The new prelate also said he favored placing the atom bomb under the "control of an international organization as rapidly as possible."

In other action at the convention which concludes Friday:

The deputies approved the liberalized marriage canon, a source of bitter debate before it was approved by the House of Bishops and sent to the deputies for final approval.

Under the new canon, diocesan discretion will determine whether divorced members may remarry. Previously, only the innocent party in a divorce granted because of adultery, was permitted to remarry. Henceforth a diocesan bishop, aided by a diocesan council if he wishes, will review requests for remarriage and determine whether the original marriage was a true union.

The house of bishops, after long debate, concurred with the action of the deputies on unity with the Presbyterian Church, recommending that the proposed merger be studied another three years.

Dress Goods Stolen Valued at $25,000

Cold Spring Dyeing Co. Suffers Loss Early Today

Cold Spring, N. Y., Sept. 18 (AP)—State Police said three men early today stole $25,000 worth of dress goods and finished curtain material from the Cold Spring Dyeing and Finishing Co.

Lt. John A. Lawson of the Fishkill barracks said two of the men were armed with guns and one with a machine gun. He said they bound a night watchman, Joseph Pensiero, 52, failed in an attempt to open a safe containing $4,000 and then apparently departed with the goods in a truck.

The night watchman freed himself after the men left, Lawson said, and walked a mile to telephone because phone wires in the dyeing concern were cut.

Paltz Informed On Arbitration

Teachers College which, under the leadership of its president, the youthful Dr. William Haggerty, is not only a powerful influence in developing an annual crop of forward-thinking public school teachers, but has become a pervasive factor in the cultural and social activities of the community. And among its many other claims to distinction, New Paltz may file a caveat upon being the best informed community regarding arbitration.

And this has come about as a result of a determined effort on the part of the several leading groups really to inform themselves on a subject that too many people feel they know about because the word "arbitration" is so frequently in the headlines and discussed by the commentators on the radio.

In the vanguard of this effort, Dr. Haggerty participated in a series of conferences at Arbitration Headquarters, the New York offices of the American Arbitration Association. These were organized by Dr. Hermann Cooper, the Assistant Commissioner of Education in charge of teacher-training for the State of New York. The purpose of these first conferences was to explore arbitration as a subject for informing the teachers so that it might be incorporated in the curricula of the primary and secondary schools, and also to determine, in each of the several State Teachers Colleges, how the procedure of arbitration might be used in determining disputes at the various levels in school affairs, particularly in the student government organization.

Dr. Haggerty, animated by a deep and abiding interest in world peace and the advancement of the civilized approach to the settlement of dispute in labor and commerce, opened the program with an "Assembly" at the College. One of the officials of the Arbitration Association outlined to the audience of 400 the historic development of the principles of arbitration, its application to the thousand and one phases of human relationships and its future as the one possible alternative to the atomic annihilation of civilization if future wars are to be avoided.

This Assembly meeting was the spark-plug which fired New Paltz.

The Reverend Gerret J. Wullschleger, dominie of the Reformed Church, is, mirabile dictu, program director of the New Paltz Business Men's Association. Imbued with the realization that there was a dynamics of pacific settlement of dispute which, looking forward, was of even greater importance to the world than the dynamics of the forceful determination of dispute, he conveked an Arbitration Meeting of his organization. Case histories of notable arbitrations were analyzed, values were appraised, arbitration as applicable to the day-to-day problems of living in a civilized community was subjected to the rigorous examination of a group of men whose environment, training, and normal dispositions are conservative and whose response to innovation is a healthy skepticism until it proves itself.

This rigorous approach to the subject revealed not only a deep latent interest, but stimulated the third arbitration session—this time under the auspices of the Century Club, an auxiliary of Dr. Wullschleger's Church organization. Well over a hundred men and women participated in the very lively discussion which followed a presentation of the history, development and present-day use of arbitration in labor-management disputes, commercial controversies and [illegible] conflicts on economic and political levels.

New Paltz as a community became—in the jargon of the advertising [illegible]—arbitration-conscious. [illegible] and store, more and more frequently became the forum for arguments on the [illegible] featured in the news [illegible] papers and weeklies. In just a few months New Paltz discovered itself to be very vitally concerned. Inquiries for printed matter [illegible] programmes of the [illegible] on arbitration and [illegible] questions [illegible] to be received at Arbitration Headquarters [illegible] and then in such volume that it became apparent there had actually developed a "community interest."

Impressed by this on-the-spot observation of the hold that the idea had gained on the adult citizens of New Paltz, the Supervisor of Public Schools for the Southern District of Ulster county realized that it was high time to begin training the youth in the fundamentals of arbitration. For here is the only principle pregnant with hope for a democratic world where peace may reign. Duelling has been outlawed as the method for settling private disputes; if war is likewise to be outlawed as the method for settling national disputes, arbitration must be accepted.

So, in cooperation with the Arbitration Association, a session of the annual conference of public school teachers was devoted to the animated exploration of the subject by nearly 150 of the men and women who, in the "little red school houses" and the big consolidated schools of the county, are shaping the minds of the generation that stands at the entrance threshold of life as it will be lived tomorrow.

The ripples on the placid pool of New Paltz thought created by the first community conference have—naturally in this world of manifold interests—not grown into any engulfing tidal wave of arbitration. Marriages, deaths, births, romances still outrank the subject in gossip value. Prices, priorities and politics doubtless dominate male thinking.

But—and this seems to be a very vital and heartening fact—New Paltz knows today what arbitration is, what it has been, and what it can be tomorrow. And it knows this is not in the esoteric exclusiveness of a small group of lofty thinkers, but in the rank and file of the stout and doughty burghers, in the school rooms and the church, and in the homes and clubs, and stores and taverns, of this small town where the "grass roots" of America were planted several centuries ago.

In New Paltz, and the 50,000 towns fundamentally like it which span the country from coast to coast and from the Canadian border to the Rio Grande, the thought, the plans and the aspirations of their solid citizenry are making the American of tomorrow just as significantly as the politicians of Washington, the bankers of New York, the industrialists of Detroit, Chicago and Pittsburgh or the oil magnates of Texas and California.

And so New Paltz becomes the first American small community to take the knowledge and discussion and perchance the actual application of the principle of arbitration into its schools, homes, offices, churches and other social and economic aspects of the daily living of its inhabitants, and thus build a more solid foundation of good will and cooperation and confidence in each other and among themselves.

Deleted Portions Of Wallace Speech To Be Published

Tokyo, Sept. 18 (AP)—The complete text of Secretary Wallace's foreign policy speech was cleared today for publication in Japanese newspapers after "higher authorities" approved several main sections that had been deleted by General MacArthur's civil censorship officer.

It was reliably reported that the higher authority was a headquarters official who rescinded the censorship when the matter was brought to his attention.

"Censorship authorities of the supreme commander, Allied powers (MacArthur) following established press code for the Japanese press, had originally observed their routine procedure of deleting unofficial expressions of opinion which reflect adversely on any Allied power or its policies," his public relations office explained. "Since it was not clear that the statements in this address, critical of Allied policies, had official sanction in the United States, they were deleted as a matter of course. Official statements made on a governmental plane by the spokesman of any Allied power are never censored, regardless of their contents.

"In this instance, because the address was made by a United States cabinet member, the full speech was ordered cleared for publication in the Japanese press as soon as the matter was brought to the attention of higher authority."

Scholarship Established

A scholarship of $300 was established this year by the board of managers and the Alumnae Association to encourage and assist the graduates of the school to continue in the study of nursing and to prepare for supervision or teaching. This scholarship will be open each year to a member of that graduating class and is to be used within two years of graduation. This year the decision by the scholarship committee will be made upon receipt of applications from those interested.

The Rev. William J. McVey, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church gave the invocation and benediction. Two piano solos were played by Mrs. Bertrand Bishop, "Gardens in the Rain," Debussy and "Grande Valse," Chopin. The processional and recessional marches were played by Miss Marie Page.

Valedictory Text

In giving the valedictory Miss Bowers expressed the appreciation of the class to their instructors and all who assisted in their training. The text of her speech in part follows:

In the name of the graduating class of 1946, let me take this opportunity to thank you for the warmth of your reception. We graduates are truly honored this evening by your presence. To you, our dear mothers and fathers, we wish to extend our sincerest thanks for the many sacrifices you have made that we may see this day—sacrifices known only to you and to God. To our relatives and friends who have helped and encouraged us we extend our warmest appreciation. And especially—to all the doctors we express our heartfelt thanks. To all who have made possible this happy occasion for us we say: A million thanks.

Words seem so futile and devoid of meaning at a time like this—for we are truly grateful. Gratitude permeates our every thought. It wells up from within our happy hearts. We are gloriously glad because we are graduates of Kingston Hospital.

One thing we would like to say is, that we want to leave each and every one of you knowing that we have you as close friends here at Kingston Hospital. We value this friendship as a pearl of great price for which we would be willing to sacrifice all rather than to lose it. We accept it as our most precious heritage. Always will we treasure it. From our inmost hearts we sincerely thank God for letting us live with you—that he has brought us all together here at Kingston Hospital.

We leave you with a fond farewell and a friendly clasp of the hand. Tomorrow morning most of us will drop out of your lives. We shall feel the pang of parting. For Kingston Hospital has been our home—and you, you have been our inspiration. We shall be sorry to leave, because you have made a niche in our hearts, but we shall always be glad for having passed this way.

IS PROPERTY UPKEEP A PROBLEM?
Turn OLD HOUSES into "NEW" HOMES with FLINTKOTE Insulated Brick Siding
Here's an amazing new bargain in Home Repair. For very little more than the cost of either insulation or brick-type siding (if purchased separately) the new Flintkote Insulated Brick Siding gives you both. This remarkable new material makes homes more comfortable, more attractive, more rentable, and more salable.
Flintkote Insulated Brick Siding soon pays for itself in fuel savings and in reduced upkeep expense. And, at the same time, it adds greatly to the value of your house by making it look like a substantial "brick" home. Write or call us today for free samples and estimates.
